Season's

Greetings

FRESHLY FALLEN SNOW and an oil painting filter create a colorful holiday scene at the Hancock-Adams Common. In the foreground a passerby walks near a brightly-lit 52-foot Christmas tree. Also decorated are several lamp posts with festive red ribbons and greens. In the background is the illuminated bell tower of United First Parish Church - "The Church of the Presidents."

On behalf of Massachusetts' kids,
THANK YOU SEN. JOHN KEENAN

for ending the sale of all flavored tobacco products, including flavored e-cigarettes and menthol cigarettes.

Massachusetts' new law is a milestone in the fight to reverse the youth e-cigarette epidemic and stop tobacco companies from targeting and addicting kids with flavored products. E-cigarettes with flavors like mango and mint, cotton candy and gummy bear lure and addict kids. And, more than half of youth smokers – including seven out of ten African-American youth smokers – use menthols. The new law helps end Big Tobacco's long history of targeting kids and communities of color with menthol cigarettes.

Sen. Keenan helped make Massachusetts the first state to stop the sale of all flavored tobacco.

THANK YOU FOR PROTECTING OUR KIDS.

Police Hope To Replace K-9 That Died While On Duty

Service Held For 'Major'

By SCOTT JACKSON

A memorial service was held recently to honor the Quincy police dog who died suddenly while on duty.

The memorial service for Major, the K-9 partner of officer Ken Wood, took place Dec. 11 at the Angel View Pet Cemetery in Middleborough. Major died Dec. 7 after suffering a medical emergency at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

"It's really sad. He was one of our best dogs and Ken Wood is one of our best handlers," Police Chief Paul Keenan told The Sun. "He was a nice dog too."

Major, a 6-year-old German shepherd, was rushed to the VCA South Shore Animal Hospital in Weymouth, with assistance from Braintree and Weymouth police, after suffering a medical emergency while at Veterans' Memorial Stadium the afternoon of Dec. 7. He died en route to the hospital.

Keenan said the department assumes Major died of natural causes because the medical emergency happened during routine service. No necropsy was performed.

Major was trained at the Boston Police Department's Canine Academy, police said, and specialized in explosives odor detection and patrol. He had served with the department for five years.

"One of Canine Major's many notable accomplishments during his highly successful career was tracking and locating an emotionally disturbed person who fled from Quincy Hospital," the department wrote on Facebook. "Major found the person hiding in the woods. The patient was transported back to Quincy Hospital for much needed medical care."

"On another occasion, he located a suspect's handgun that was used in a violent home invasion."

Major also responded to incidents involving suspicious packages, the department added. The German shepherd and Wood had assisted Boston police with security at the last five Boston Marathons.

"Only God will ever know the amount of acts of violence against our citizens that QPD EOD Canine Major and his fellow EOD Canines at the Quincy Police Department and in the Metro Boston Region have deterred or have interrupted from happening," the department said on Facebook. "His service to our citizens was commendable in all aspects and he will be dearly missed and always remembered by the officers of the Quincy Police Department."

The department also said Major had become part of Wood's family.

"While off duty, Major was a constant companion and care dog for Officer Ken Wood's son Jack who has autism, providing Jack with countless hours of support when Jack needed it most," the department said.

Keenan said the department would seek to replace Major through funding from a federal Urban Areas Security Initiative grant. The new dog could undertake its training in January.

The department currently had a dozen dogs in service, including those in training.

Park Dept. Winter Solstice Stroll Saturday

The Park Department is offering a free winter solstice stroll on Saturday, Dec. 21 at 2 p.m.

On this longest night and shortest day of the year, participants are invited to take a break from the hectic pace of the holiday season. The tour will begin on Fenno Street at the intersection with Andrews Road with a deliberately slow paced walk along the Salt Marsh trail.

Part of the walk will be in silence for participants to experience the sights, sounds and feel of the natural world and part will be social with the opportunity to chat with others.

Dress and wear footwear appropriate for the weather.

Call 617-472-0799 on Dec. 21 for rain/snow/icy conditions rescheduling.

If I Could Give One Gift This Holiday Season...

Fifth grade students in Quincy's public schools and the Quincy Catholic Academy were invited again this year to write the answer to one question for this special issue of The Quincy Sun.

This year's theme is: "If I Could Give One Gift This Holiday Season It Would Be..."

We want to thank Erin Perkins, Quincy Public Schools' director for Elementary Curriculum and Programs for coordinating the public schools' participation and the principals and classroom teachers of those schools.

We also thank Catherine Cameron, principal of the Quincy Catholic Academy, for her assistance, too.

To all who took part, we extend warmest holiday greetings. Thank you all, most sincerely.

Scenes From Yesterday

MERRY CHRISTMAS from QUINCY, MASS.

Largest Christmas Tree in United States.
85 feet high contributed by Retail Merchants.

THIS 1934 POSTCARD is a view of the Christmas tree erected by the Retail Merchants Bureau of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce. It was in front of the Granite Trust Bank building now home to a branch of the Bank of America at 1400 Hancock St. Two weeks before this tree was lit a smaller tree was dedicated on the same spot, but it was toppled by a 55-mile-per-hour gale. MIT engineers brought in to prevent a reoccurrence claimed this new 85-foot tree could withstand winds to 240 mph. The first 60 feet of the trunk, set firmly into the ground, was the boom from a derrick donated by the Swingle Quarry Co. It was capable of lifting 20 tons of granite. On top of the boom was attached a 25-foot real tree. Three hundred and twenty smaller trees salvaged from the collapsed tree were inserted into holes drilled into the boom to served as the lower branches. Six nearly one-inch thick cables secured the tree from all sides, and some 600 lights accompanied a large and small star that flashed alternately at the top. On the occasion of the tree lighting, a spectacular scintillator on top of the bank building threw a great fan of light in all colors more than a mile into the sky. Inside the bank the lobby and all the building's windows were lighted each day with over 1,200 real vigil candles. Howard Johnson's Restaurant was the store on the left at One Chestnut Street. On the right at 1402 Hancock St. was Homer's, a jewelry store that in 1940 became Rogers Jewelry Company. Rogers Jewelry was located here for many years until recently relocating to Presidents Place at 1250 Hancock St. This postcard has become a tradition in The Quincy Sun and is appearing for the 25th year.

Mayor To Ask Fill From River Dredging Be Used On Meadows

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa received a request today from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers asking the city to designate where it wants fill from the Town River dredging project placed.

Mayor Della Chiesa said that the city would ask that most of the fill be placed on Broad Meadows. The city may also ask that some be placed on the Mound Street Beach providing the material is suitable.

The Army Engineers expect to advertise for bids around the first of the year.

BROADMEADOWS SCHOOL CONTRACT

The general contract for building the Broadmeadows Junior High School was awarded by City Manager Donald H. Blatt to James S. Kelliher of Quincy who submitted the lowest bid of a dozen general contractors seeking the work.

Mr. Kelliher built both the Quincy Health Center and the Trade School addition. His bid for the 750-pupil junior high school was $1,334,491, more than $20,000 under the second lowest bid furnished by Concrete Construction Company of Everett.

The contract called for stating the work no later than Dec. 30 this year and completion by March 30, 1957.

Total cost of the school including subcontractors' bids came to $1,758,000.

COUNCIL OK'S SQUANTUM MARSH TAKING

The long fight by Squantum residents was won last night when the City Council voted to take the property for recreational purposes by a vote of 5-to-1.

Councillor David J. Crowley voted against the taking; Councillor Carl W. Anderson was absent and the other five members of the council voted for it.

The council also appropriated $6,800 to pay for the taking.

Councillor Crowley objected to the passage on the grounds that the new order was before the council for the first time, but Mayor Della Chiesa ruled that the question was properly before the council for action.

No-Boil Stuffed Shells

By MARIE

Through the years I have made no-boil lasagna many times. Recently I found a recipe for no-boil stuffed shells.

Imagine not having to boil the shells and what a step saver! The reason the shells can soften without being boiled is because they are stuffed with ricotta cheese and the moisture from the cheese stuffing softens the shells as they cook.

Pre-heat oven to 400 Degrees; prepare a 9 x 12 baking dish

- 1/2 pound medium shells
- 1 pound ricotta cheese
- 1 egg
- 1/4 grated Romano cheese
- 2 cups mozzarella cheese
- Fresh parsley (optional)

1 quart of marinara sauce *

*(you can make your own marinara sauce if you prefer)

Place ricotta cheese in a bowl, add egg and grated Romano cheese and a teaspoon of fresh parsley (parsley is optional) and blend well.

On the bottom of a 9 x 12 casserole dish, place a little of the sauce and olive oil.

Fill each shell with the ricotta mixture.

Place the filled shells in a casserole dish and top with sauce and mozzarella cheese.

Bake covered at 400 degrees for 25 minutes.

Then uncover and bake another 10 minutes.

Serve with extra sauce. This dish goes great with salad and artesian bread.

Roasted Parsnips

By SUSIE

Parsnips are relatives of carrots and parsley. Try subbing these for roasted potatoes (or doing half and half) to reduce your carb intake!

They contain high levels of minerals such as calcium, potassium, manganese, magnesium, phosphorus, zinc, and iron. They have an impressive range of vitamins, including folate, thiamin, pantothenic acid, vitamin B6, C, E, and K.

Additionally, they also have high levels of fiber, water, and protein. These underutilized veggies also have an impressive history in herbal medicine, used to help many health issues including even being used as an aphrodisiac.

Today they are known to help prevent heart disease, birth defects, and contain quite a bit of soluble and insoluble fiber as well. These are easy to prepare and make a wonderful side dish to all your meals!

Use them the next day in a salad or puree into a soup.

ROASTED PARSNIPS

2 lb. parsnips, peeled and cut into 2" pieces

2 tbsp. extra-virgin olive oil, 1 tbsp. avocado oil (combined)

1 tsp. dried oregano

Sea Salt

Freshly ground black pepper

Pinch of crushed red pepper flakes

Preheat oven to 425°.

Spread parsnips on 2 large baking sheets, being sure to not overcrowd.

Drizzle with olive oil and season with oregano, salt, pepper, and red pepper flakes. Toss to evenly coat.

Roast until golden and easily pierced with a knife, about 30 minutes, tossing once halfway through.

Cranberry Orange Scones

By MARIE

Fresh home-baked scones are the best! Their aroma fills the kitchen – and there is nothing better this time of year than to come home to these delicious treats.

They can be a wonderful breakfast treat, especially on a Sunday morning when you can take some time to enjoy them, or they can be a great after dinner desert or nice to share with friends over a cup of tea.

I made this recipe with my baking club that I belong to and have already baked them! They are delicious and a nice treat to have around the Christmas holidays!!

Preheat oven to 400 degrees; line a cookie sheet with parchment paper; or lightly grease a cookie sheet.

In a large bowl, whisk together the flour, baking powder, salt, and sugar.

In a separate small bowl, whisk together egg, half and half, and most of the orange zest (reserve about 1/2 teaspoon for the glaze); set aside.

Add butter into the flour mixture with a fork until mixture looks crumbly. Stir in the chopped cranberries.

Add the egg mixture to the flour mixture all at once and stir mix well.

On a floured board form mixture into a ball and knead until everything is combined. Use more flour if dough is too sticky.

Cut dough into two equal pieces and pat each into a circle about 3/4 inch thick. Cut each circle like a pie into 8 slices on baking sheet.

Leave dough in pie shape on baking sheet.

Bake in a preheated 400 degree oven for 12 to 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Remove to a rack and let cool. When scones are cooled, pour on glaze.

Glaze

1 cup sifted powdered sugar

3 to 4 tablespoons orange juice

1/2 teaspoon orange zest (reserved from above)

When scones come out of oven, cool for a bit and then pour on glaze.

Ingredients and recipe

- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 large egg
- 3/4 to 1 cup of heavy cream
- 1 tablespoon zest of orange
- 1 tablespoon orange juice
- 1/2 cup unsalted butter, cut in small pieces and well chilled
- 1/2 cup fresh cranberries, chopped

Appalled By Whitwell St. Project Vote

I am appalled and sickened by the decision of the Zoning Board of Appeals regarding their vote on the Whitwell St. property.

The neighbors were against the project, the people who are most affected by this horrendous project. That doesn't seem to matter. The City Council was against the project, the people who represent the citizens most affected by this horrendous project. That doesn't seem to matter.

Who does the Zoning Board of Appeals represent? Hmm, let me think – could it be the developers, the construction unions or perhaps the city fathers or all of the above? Certainly not the citizens, a.k.a. the taxpayers, the abutters, the ones most affected by this horrendous project.

The city would sell its soul for the right price oh, and another monument to the aforementioned developers, unions and the city fathers.

In this week's Quincy Sun, the mayor mentions that the new development will rid the city of derelict buildings. What about the derelict buildings that are on Hancock Street that have stood for years after a fire? No takers I guess.

My condolences to the citizens of Quincy who must endure the such "leadership"!

The Science Of Christmas

Some Thoughts About The Holiday Season

By KATHY DULLEA HOGAN

In the aftermath of the Quincy Christmas Parade, I want you to know that this year I entered the Christmas Parade Theme contest but didn't expect to be chosen.

Why?

Because I knew a Science of Christmas theme would need more than a few weeks to prepare a plan for a float. That's right, I did suggest the Science of Christmas!

This is a chance to look at this special holiday from a very different point of view – Starting with the story of the first Christmas, combined with celebrations of the season and winter fun. When you think about it, the possibilities are so many. And I offer you these ideas to show how it could be done:

LIGHT

- Astronomy: The Star of Bethlehem
- Light waves
- Electric lights
- Fireworks on New Year's Eve

SOUND

- Choral singing

- Bells
- Holiday music
- Vibrations, sound waves

BOTANY

- Christmas trees
- Recycling those Christmas trees

ZOOLOGY

- Animals: donkey, sheep, cow, camel, reindeer

EARTH SCIENCE

- North Pole

CHEMISTRY

- States of matter for water: ice and snow / water / steam and fog
- Periodic table. Identify elements found in some of the above suggestions. For example, What elements are found in trees and wreaths?

What elements produce different colors in fireworks?

What elements are used in electric lights?

WINTER FUN

- These sports are all great ways you can learn about physics – Sledding, Skating, Skiing. Discover energy and gravity, friction, inertia, axis of rotation (skating), and more through your favorite winter sport. My blog can give you more on this (see below).

TECHNOLOGY

- Satellites tracking Santa Claus!

• The Patriot Ledger does a whimsical page every year on the "physics" of Santa's trip, some of it possible, some of it needing some imagination and a leap of faith, and maybe a bit of magic, too!

I'm sure you can think of more. Keep in mind: Science is about discovering the principles by which The Great Scientist created this universe.

Unlike the man in 'Twas the Night Before Christmas, don't just put on your sleeping cap, put on your thinking cap. Feel free to contact me for ideas.

Students, consider this theme to inspire your science fair project. If an individual or a group develops something before April, you might be able to present it at the South Shore Science Festival (team@southshorescience.org or www.southshorescience.org).

Stress, Depression And The Holidays: Tips For Coping

A Message From Ruth Jones, City Of Quincy Health Commissioner

By RUTH JONES
MSPH, BSN, RN,
BC, CP-FS

Holiday festivities often bring joy and happiness along with unwelcome guests, stress and depression. And it's no surprise.

The holidays bestow on us a dizzying array of demands; parties, shopping, baking, cleaning and entertaining, to mention just a few. Stress and depression can spoil your holidays and impair your health. Being realistic, planning ahead and pursuing support can help fend off anxiety and despair.

Preventing stress and depression initially, especially if the holidays have taken an emotional toll on you in the past, is usually more successful. If you wait till stress is at its maximum, it's usually more difficult to pause and regroup. With some practical tips, you can reduce the stress that accompanies the holidays, and you may even end up enjoying the celebrations more than you anticipated that you would.

- Recognize your feelings. If someone close to you has recently died or you can't be with loved ones, acknowledge that it's normal to experience sadness and grief. It's OK to take time to cry or express your feelings. You can't compel yourself to be happy just because it's the holiday season.

- Reach out. If you feel lonesome or isolated, look for community, religious or other social events that can offer support and companionship. Share with someone less fortunate, volunteering your time to help others also is a positive way to lift your spirits and expand your friendships.

- Be realistic. The holidays don't have to be picture-perfect or just like holidays in years gone by. As families change and grow, traditions and rituals are often modified as well. Choose a few to cling to, and be open to inventing new ones. For example, if your adult children can't come to your house, find novel ways to celebrate together, such as sharing pictures, emails or videos.

- Try not to judge the value of a gift by its price tag. The best gifts come from the genuine desire to make a person happy. If you give from the heart, your gift will never be too trivial. Develop a budget, before you go gift and food shopping, decide how much money you can afford to spend then stick to it. Don't try to buy happiness by showering others with gifts.

- Set aside disparities. Attempt to accept family members and friends as they are, even if things don't live up to all of your expectations. Reserve grievances until there is a more appropriate time for dialogue. Mostly try to understand if others get troubled or distressed when something goes askew, chances are they're feeling the effects of holiday stress and depression, also.

- Remember, your family is not a TV family. There will be squabbles and rivalries among siblings. If mom has always criticized you, she still will. These things don't have to bring the festivities to a collapse. Keep in mind that usually you may not be in control of other people's actions, but you can undoubtedly control your reaction to them. Take this year as an opportunity to learn forgiveness and tolerance. If all else flops, take a time out with a spouse or other sympathetic listener and voice your frustrations.

- Plan ahead. Set aside specific days for shopping, baking, visiting friends and other activities. Plan your menus and then make your shopping list, that'll help prevent last-minute rushing to buy forgotten ingredients. Also, make sure to arrange for assistance for party prep and cleanup.

- Learn to say no. Saying yes when you inadvertently should have said no can leave you feeling resentful and inundated. Friends and colleagues will understand if you can't participate in every project or activity if you clarify this ahead of time.

- Remember to continue your healthy habits. Overindulgence only adds to your tension and guilt. Don't let the holidays develop into a free-for-all. Suggestions for staying on track might include: having a healthy snack before holiday parties so that you don't go overboard on sweets, appetizers or drinks, getting plenty of sleep, integrating regular physical activity every day.

- Take a respite. Allow some time for yourself. Spending just 15 minutes alone, without distractions, may rejuvenate you enough to accomplish all your tasks. Seek out activities that reduce stress by clearing your mind, slowing your breathing and restoring inner tranquility.

- Bear in mind that things will occasionally go amiss. Your kids will make noise. You will forget to buy batteries, thaw the turkey or take rolls out of the oven. Plans will be postponed, and dogs will jump up on your favorite dress with muddy paws. If you can learn to tackle these little stumbling blocks with panache and grace, and a dose of humor, you may find yourself actually having fun.

- Seek expert help if despite your best efforts, you find yourself feeling persistently sad or worried, plagued by physical complaints, incapable of sleeping, short-tempered and unable to face everyday chores. If these feelings endure, talk to your doctor or a mental health professional.

Don't let the holidays grow to be something you dread. Instead, take actions to prevent the stress and depression that can descend during these times. Learn to distinguish your holiday triggers, such as financial burdens or personal demands, so you can combat them before they lead to a disintegration of your celebration. With a little planning and some positive contemplating, you can discover peace and joy during the holiday season.

State Approves Restricting Access To Vaping, Tobacco Products

The state's Public Health Council has approved new regulations that restrict the sale of nicotine vaping and flavored vaping and tobacco products.

This action follows the Legislature's passing and Governor Charlie Baker's signing into law An Act Modernizing Tobacco Control, which provided the Massachusetts Department of Public Health with additional authority to regulate access to tobacco and electronic nicotine delivery systems, including vapes. As a result, the governor's temporary statewide ban on the sale of vaping products in place since September is no longer in effect.

Effective immediately, the new law places the following restrictions:

- 1) The sale of non-flavored nicotine vaping products (with a nicotine content of less than 35 milligrams per milliliter) is restricted to stores licensed to sell tobacco products, such as convenience stores, gas stations, and other retail outlets.

- 2) The sale of non-flavored nicotine vaping products (with a nicotine content over 35 milligrams per milliliter) is restricted to licensed, adult-only retail tobacco stores and smoking bars.

- 3) The sale and consumption of all flavored nicotine vaping products may only occur within licensed smoking bars.

Beginning June 1, 2020, the sale of flavored combustible cigarettes and other tobacco products, including menthol cigarettes and flavored chewing tobacco, will be restricted to licensed smoking bars where they may be sold only for on-site consumption. Also taking effect on June 1st is the addition of a 75 percent excise tax on the wholesale price of nicotine vaping products, in addition to the state's 6.25 percent sales tax.

The new regulations lay out a roadmap for the implementation of the new law, including enforcement authority, penalties for non-compliance, legal signage, and advertising requirements.

The regulations which are now in effect:

- Require posting of signage in any location where vaping products are sold to warn customers of the dangers of severe lung disease associated with vaping products and more generally advising them of the health risks of vaping.

- Specify the Commissioner's authority to prohibit the sale of a designated vaping product on a determination that the product causes an imminent danger to public health.

- Strengthen state and local enforcement, specifying procedures by which DPH or local Boards of Health may inspect retail locations and the products they are selling for compliance with the law, and providing for penalties for violations, ranging from $1,000 for the first violation to $5,000 for three or more violations.

- Establish how retailers and manufacturers must comply with the law's requirement that vaping products with nicotine content of more than 35 mg/ml may only be sold in 21+ establishments.

- Require vaping products to be placed behind the counter in all non-age restricted retailers (e.g., convenience stores).

A public hearing on the regulations will be scheduled within the next 90 days.

Massachusetts clinicians are still required to report to DPH any individual experiencing vaping-related health problems and to ask patients to retain any vaping devices and products for possible testing by the federal Food and Drug Administration.

To date, DPH has reported 93 cases (31 confirmed and 62 probable cases) to the US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, including three deaths from vaping-associated lung injury.

The cause of e-cigarette or vaping-associated lung injury (EVALI) remains unknown and under investigation at both the state and federal level. The Department of Public Health recommends that people not use e-cigarettes or vaping products.

Effective Jan. 1st, 2020, Massachusetts commercial health insurance plans plus the Group Insurance Commission and MassHealth, must cover smoking cessation counseling and FDA-approved products such as gum, lozenges, or patches without cost-sharing. Information about today's announcement is available at www.mass.gov/NewTobaccoLaw. The site will continue to be updated as new information and resources are available.

Give the GIFT OF HEARING This Holiday Season

Do you have an old set of hearing aids that you don't use anymore? Why not donate them? Every year thousands of hearing aids are donated from hearing professionals and other individuals looking to help those who can't afford hearing aids. Those hearing aids open up the world of sound to people in need. This holiday season, why not give the gift of better hearing?

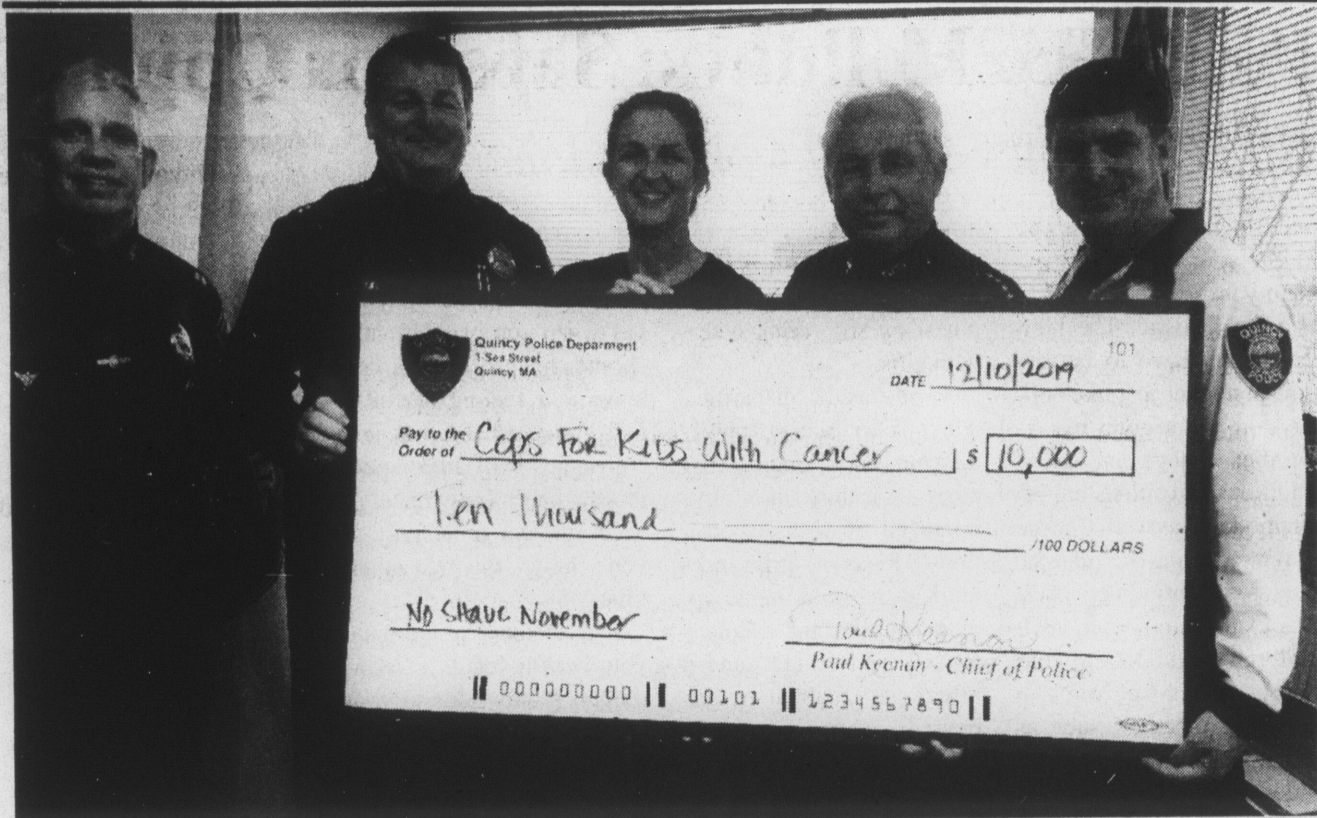

Tobias Hearing Center is happy to assist in donating old hearing aids. For more information, call or stop by our office! 617.934.4656

Police Donate $10,000 To Cancer Charity

By SCOTT JACKSON
The Quincy Police Department recently donated $10,000 raised through its No-Shave November initiative to the non-profit Cops For Kids With Cancer.

More than 100 officers participated in No-Shave

November this year, Sgt. Karyn Barkas said. Officers were required to donate $75 to the fundraiser to participate, she said, and some officers donated more than that.

The department also hosted a shave-a-thon fundraiser at the end of November at Alda Barbershop in Quincy Point, which raised another $1,000, Barkas said, and members of the Rural Masonic Lodge donated $600.

"It was definitely a team effort," she said.

This year marked the fifth year the department has participated in No-Shave November and the third year the department has donated to Cops For Kids With Cancer. The department has donated $24,920 to the charity during those three years.

New Restaurant Opening In Quincy Point

By SCOTT JACKSON

An eatery specializing in breakfast foods is set to move into the former home of a Chinese restaurant in Quincy Point.

The Board of License Commissioners on Dec. 10 granted a common victualer license to Fael's Breakfast, Lunch and Dinner. The new restaurant will be located at 656 Washington St., the long-time home of Mandarin King.

Adilson Faria, the owner of the new eatery, said he planned to open as soon as possible.

The new restaurant's licensed hours are 5 a.m. to 10 p.m. seven days a week. Faria said he planned to open for breakfast and lunch at first; the restaurant could stay open later based on demand.

The restaurant will specialize in breakfast, he said, noting there are no similar eateries nearby.

"It's a good location," Faria said. "There is no breakfast place around there."

Christopher Carroll, the attorney representing David Chew, who owns the Washington Street site and the Dairy Queen next door, said there was great interest in the former Mandarin King space after it closed.

"We did go out of our way to kind of hand select someone. We had all sorts of individuals that were interested," Carroll said. "We thought this was the best fit for the neighborhood and the community."

The space has seating for 45 customers inside.

In other business Dec.

10, the board granted an extension of premises to The Townshend for a holiday event it will host Saturday in the atrium at Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock St. The event will be held from noon to 3 p.m.

Restaurateur Devin Adams said children would have the opportunity to visit Santa Claus and decorate cookies.

"Let them have a mess and have some fun before the holidays," he said.

Snacks and hot chocolate will be available for children. Seasonal drinks, including eggnog and mulled cider, will be available for adults, along with beer and wine.

The Townshend will be serving brunch during the event in the atrium.

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty: Retired Public Servant Surprised By 'WEP'

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I turned 62 in October 2018. A few months prior to my birth month, I went on the Social Security website which said my estimated benefits would be between $900-$1,000 at full retirement age and between $600-$700 at age 62. I receive a pension from a city government where I was a firefighter for almost 20 years where I did not pay Social Security tax on my income, but I have over 20 years invested in Social Security from other jobs. I expected the cut in benefits for retiring early (62), but I was totally caught off guard by my benefits being cut in half again because of the Windfall Elimination Provision (WEP). My city pension is about $1,700 monthly, and it's my understanding that WEP is not supposed to reduce my Social Security by more than half of my government pension. My current Social Security benefit is $348 a month which is considerably less than half of my $1,700 pension. Am I missing something? Shouldn't I be getting $600-$700 in Social Security benefits? Signed: Retired Firefighter

Dear Retired Firefighter: WEP rules are complicated and you certainly aren't alone in your dismay over how WEP affects Social Security benefits for public servants in certain states which didn't participate in Social Security. I'll try to shed some light on what happened to your benefit amount.

The first thing you should know is that the estimates you received from Social Security before you claimed were just that — estimates. If you were working in SS-covered employment prior to getting the estimate, the amounts given assumed you would continue to work at your recent SS-covered earnings until your full retirement age. If you didn't, your full retirement age (FRA) benefit amount would be less than the amount quoted. The estimate given at that time didn't take WEP into account either. The WEP reduction takes place before the reduction for claiming early at age 62. WEP affects your "primary insurance amount" (PIA), which is the amount you're normally entitled to at your full retirement age from SS-covered work.

When you applied for Social Security your PIA was recomputed using a special WEP formula. Your PIA is based on your "average indexed monthly earnings" or "AIME", which is the monthly average of the highest earning 35 years over your lifetime in which you contributed to Social Security. Your PIA is determined by breaking your AIME into 3 parts (called "bend points"), multiplying those parts by a certain percentage for each part, and totaling up those three computations. When WEP applies, the first part of your AIME is multiplied by 40%, rather than the normal 90%, of the first $895 of your AIME (this is the amount for your "eligibility year" 2018). So, the first part of your WEP AIME would contribute $358 (instead of the normal $805) to your PIA and, thus, to your FRA benefit amount — a reduction of $447. (If you have more than 20 years of substantial earnings in SS-covered employment, the impact of WEP is lessened by about 5% for each year over 20). There is a maximum WEP reduction ($447 for 2018) and there is also a rule which says your WEP reduction cannot be more than half of your non-covered pension amount. But since half of your city pension is more than $447, that rule does not change the WEP reduction.

So, using your general numbers, if your FRA benefit (before WEP) was "$900-$1,000", let's say that your normal PIA was about $950. After the WEP reduction your WEP PIA would be about $503, which is what you would get if you waited until your full retirement age to claim Social Security. By claiming at age 62, your benefit was reduced by about 27%, which would make your benefit about $367/month. This isn't far from what you are now getting, considering that we're using only estimated numbers in these calculations. Remember, the SS rule doesn't say that your WEP reduced benefit amount can't be less than half of your non-covered pension amount. Instead it says that the WEP reduction to your PIA can't be more than that.

Council Votes 8-1 For $32M Public Safety HQ Bond

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors on Monday approved a $32 million bond that will allow the administration to press forward with plans to construct a new public safety headquarters on Sea Street, a project that has an estimated total price tag of up to $110 million.

The council approved Mayor Thomas Koch's request to borrow the $32 million in an 8-1 vote, with Councillor Anne Mahoney voting against the request. She said there were too many unanswered questions about the project to move forward.

The city plans to build the new public safety building in the vicinity of the current police station at 1 Sea St. The new 122,000-square-foot building would replace the police station and also house the Quincy Fire Department's administrative offices and the Emergency Management Department.

Joseph Shea, an engineer with the firm Woodward & Curran, said the total cost to build the new public safety building is expected to be in the range of $100 to $110 million, including the money set aside Monday night. A 2017 bond included $500,000 to start a feasibility study for the project.

The money approved Monday includes $19.5 million to purchase five parcels of land. Those parcels include 450 Southern Artery, now home to a Stop & Shop gas station; 21 Broad St., formerly the Bryan VFW Post and now a recycling center; 12 Field St., where a single-family home is located; and 39 Broad St., which is home to a single-story commercial building.

Under Koch's proposal, the underground fuel tanks at the Stop & Shop gas station would be used to fuel city vehicles, replacing the current fuel depot at the Department of Public Works. The 192-space parking garage for the new public safety complex would be located in the area of the former VFW Post. The acquisition of the Field Street parcel would allow the city to construct a new road linking Field Street to Broad Street.

As part of the project, the city would also demolish

Fr. Bill's Place at 38 Broad St. and the Quincy Animal Shelter at 56 Broad St., both of which are on land owned by the city already. Fr. Bill's Place would be relocated to 39 Broad St. and the city is designing a new animal shelter on Quarry Street, next to a planned dog park. While the city would purchase the land for Fr. Bill's Place, the organization would be responsible for securing the funds to construct a new building there.

The city also intends to acquire the vacant parcel at 47 Quincy Ave. That parcel could be used as a replacement for the fire station across the street 40 Quincy Ave. Shea said the new firehouse on Quincy Avenue could cost between $4 and $6 million.

Chris Walker, Koch's chief of staff, said community input would be solicited before plans for the new firehouse on Quincy Avenue advance. In addition, he said the future of the site at 40 Quincy Ave. has yet to be determined.

The city had considered moving the Fire Department apparatus now located at the Quincy Avenue firehouse to the new building on Sea Street but decided against doing so early on in the process because it would increase response times in the Penn's Hill section of the city, Shea said.

The money approved Monday also includes $6 million in architectural fees, $2.4 million for environmental efforts and contingency, $1.6 million for the owner's project manager and peer review, $1.5 million for agency coordination, permitting and infrastructure work, and $1 million for demolition and site clearing.

The city could begin demolition on site as soon as the spring of 2020 with the design finalized in the summer. The administration would then be back before the council next fall to seek funds to construct the new building, parking areas and greenspace on the corner of Southern Artery and Sea Street, which Koch referred to in November as "Quincy First Responders Park."

Construction of the new building could then begin in the spring of 2021. The three departments would move into the new building in the fall of 2022, at which point the old police station would be demolished. Site work would be completed the following spring.

Mahoney, the councillor who cast the lone dissenting vote Monday, said city officials needed to further research the title history of the former VFW Post at 21 Broad St. She said the city had included a reverter clause when it deeded the land to the post that would have enabled the city to take back the land once the post closed.

"The title could be very well clear, but the title should be something we take a look at prior to the city of Quincy taxpayers being asked to purchase something," Mahoney said.

City Solicitor Jim Timmins said the administration would not have put forward the request to purchase the land without looking into the title history.

"I know we addressed that," he said. "We don't go forward with any sort of taking process, the orders wouldn't have been drafted, until the title was sorted and completed."

Mahoney later said she was also concerned that the design of the new animal shelter, including a price tag for the project, has yet to be completed and there is no funding in place for the new Fr. Bill's Place.

John Yawzinski, the president of Father Bill's and MainSpring, said the organization would be seeking state and federal funding to construct the new building at 39 Broad St. Plans for that site include a three-story building with a resource center, medical clinic, cafeteria, and emergency shelter

If I Could Give One Gift This Holiday Season

For my parents. They get me through rough times and getting to spend time with my family is so worth it, even if it's a few minutes. My parents mean much more than a gift to me (they are my gift).

Sophia Liu
Beechwood Knoll

To give food and homes for the homeless. So they can have a good Thanksgiving.

Joseph Knox
Beechwood Knoll

To give my mom more money to buy a new iPhone because she said that she needs a better camera for taking pictures. She also said that her iPhone 6 is old and my dad already has an iPhone XR which is a lot better than iPhone 6.

Owen Lu
Beechwood Knoll

A cure to any medical condition or disease. I would give this because there are many horrible things like Ebola or cancer which have caused many deaths.

Vincent Shi
Beechwood Knoll

That people that don't have a lot of money the ability to go to school or collage. If people go to collage then can not work at there dream job.

Emily Smith
Beechwood Knoll

Food, clothes, blankets, and money for the homeless.

Evan Nguyen
Beechwood Knoll

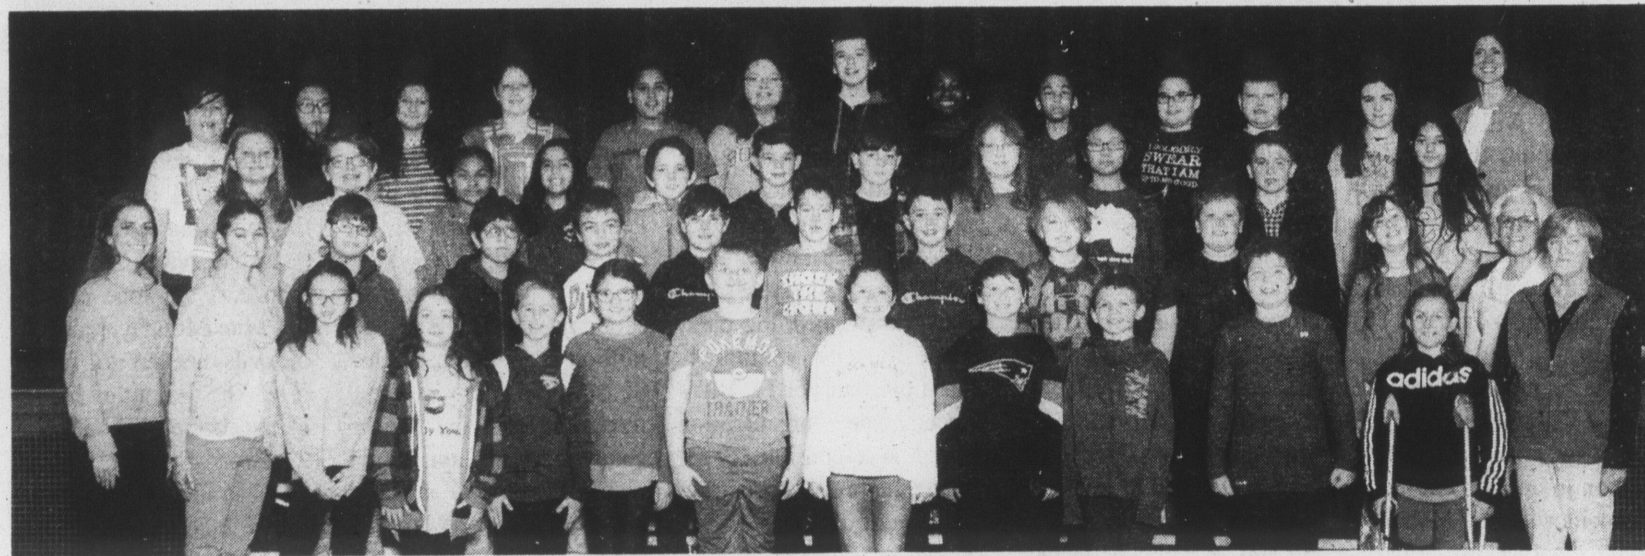

To help people in Africa to get clean water. I would also want to stop pollution and global warming to help animals and nature.

Annie Chen
Beechwood Knoll

To cure all types of cancer. This is my wish because cancer is a serious disease that i wish no one had to suffer through.

Bridget Gilmartin
Beechwood Knoll

I will give my mom a good work place. Because I want my mom to have money to buy what she want.

Ben Pham
Beechwood Knoll

For people to be respectful of the police who do their job to protect our community.

Maeve Powers
Beechwood Knoll

A phone to give to my sister because her phone is so tiny you can't even see anything on it.

Julia Tacelli
Beechwood Knoll

I want world peace. I want world peace so all the country will stop fighting.

Aubrey McCoy
Beechwood Knoll

I wish for world peace.

Emily Davis
Atherton Hough

If I had one holiday wish, I would wish my sisters were around more.

Kierstyn Viera

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be a machine that cleans water for the people in poverty.

Caden Jeffery
South-West Middle School

If I could give one gift this holiday season, I would give a $100 gift card to my teacher.

Victoria Jorge
South-West Middle School

If I could give one gift this holiday season, I would give warm clothes to people that are homeless.

Ming Yao Lao
South-West Middle School

If I could give one gift this holiday season, I would give homeless people big, fuzzy blankets so they won't get cold.

Ava Le
South-West Middle School

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be to let my family have a vacation to China. I think they would love that.

Kelly Li

If I Could Give One Gift This Holiday Season

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be to Cameron my friend. I would go through the long process to download Sky-book, the Minecraft Map for him. And I would even improve it largely for him- he would love it!

Michael Henson
FW Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be the gift of a crystal. This crystal would be not any ordinary crystal though. The crystal gives you infinite wishes. If this was real, I would wish for everyone to be happy and have money and to stop littering.

Qian Chen
FW Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be a book because I don't need as many as I have and other people might like them.

David Wu Li
FW Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be that I'd give my mom a mug because she loves mugs and she broke one of her old ones, so I think she would like a new one.

Briana Ervin-Clark
FW Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be giving food to the poor people because they can't pay for a meal to eat.

Cameron Breslin
FW Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be to my family and that would be kindness.

Thomas Yang
FW Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be to give clean water to those people who can't get access to clean and fresh water.

Alston Lu
FW Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be the gift of choice.

Matthew Tian
FW Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be to give my old friend a new iPad because he has done a lot of things I'm grateful for and helped me with my sense of humor.

Evan Chen
FW Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be food for children who don't have money to buy food. More of us need to do it, the more we give the better the world will be.

Arianna Castillo
FW Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be the gift of luck to Quincy.

Michael Feng
FW Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be to the world, fair love. Your parents can't love your brother more than you. Fair love makes you feel loved.

Elly Yang
FW Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be to give homeless people homes and food.

Tasi Glynn
FW Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be ducks. The ducks would waddle around for everyone to laugh as they pick a duck. They will be their special joy that they would love.

Jinjun Zhao
FW Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be to give the poor money and food.

Timothy Jonah
FW Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be 1000 dollars to the homeless people.

Armando Vega
FW Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be the gift of everyone being kind for 24 hours, one day at least.

Christina E. Romeo
FW Parker

If I could give one gift this holiday season, it would be food, clothes and money to homeless people so they won't need to starve or freeze.

Daniel Chen
FW Parker

I would stop littering because littering causes animals like turtles and jellyfish to get sick.

Danny
FW Parker

I would help the homeless people because I always feel bad for them and they might be getting mistreated.

Oliver
FW Parker

I would make the world a better place by stopping hate and spreading love. If everyone pitches in, the world could be like paradise!

Hayley
FW Parker

I would give everyone in the world a healthy life because millions of adults and children live in terrible conditions.

Junan
FW Parker

I would put more trees in the world to give us more oxygen.

Nathan
FW Parker

I would give a place where homeless people can stay because it is hard to live outside in bad weather.

Michelle
FW Parker

I would stop world racism because it is killing innocent people just because of the color of their skin and the culture they believe in.

Kendrick
FW Parker

I would give kindness and care.

Xi Yu
FW Parker

I would give vegetables, fruits, and water to Somali families to make them happy. I will do this when I am 20 years old.

Said
FW Parker

I would give love. Our kindness can save the world.

Jie
FW Parker

I would feed the homeless and the poor. We should always help them, because one day we could become homeless and poor.

Lillian
FW Parker

I would put a big Christmas tree covered in lights in the park, and we could sing songs around it.

Ling
FW Parker

If I could give one gift I would give an umbrella to my mom, because she would like one for Christmas.

Ryan
FW Parker

If I could give one gift I would give slime to my sister because she loves slime!

Charlie
FW Parker

If I could give one gift I would give cleaning supplies to my mom, because she likes to clean.

Jeffson
FW Parker

If I could give one gift I would give my parents a trillion dollars so my mom and dad don't need to work so hard just to earn money for our family.

Emily
FW Parker

If I could give one gift I would give my sisters new toys, because theirs are old and they don't have lots of them.

Zahara
FW Parker

If I could give one gift I would give my sister a box of glitter pens, because she likes to draw a lot.

CREMATION CARE

QUINCY | WEYMOUTH | HINGHAM

The holidays are a time when many people will visit the graves of loved ones to connect with the deceased and memories of holidays shared.

What do people do when a loved one has been scattered?

Scattering is a popular disposition choice yet, particularly around the holidays, survivors are often left seeking a way to connect with the deceased and their memories. Without a permanent memorial to visit, families often seek other ways to honor their loved ones. The following are some of the ideas our cremation experts have helped families develop:

Displaying a Memorial Candle:

Our funeral directors present each family with a personalized candle as a way to honor and memorialize the deceased. Many families have told us how they display the candle in a special place during the holidays so that their loved one may be remembered.

Repurposing the Scattering Urn:

A scattering urn may not only be used to ensure a dignified scattering but it may serve as a memorial as well. While many scattering urns have memorial engraving and are immediately suitable for display, there is no limit to what you might do to transform an empty scattering urn into a beloved linking object. Some people paint them or place mementos of their loved one in them, and display it in a significant place in the home. One family used the urn to create a holiday floral centerpiece.

Make a Special Holiday

Decoration to Honor Your Loved One:

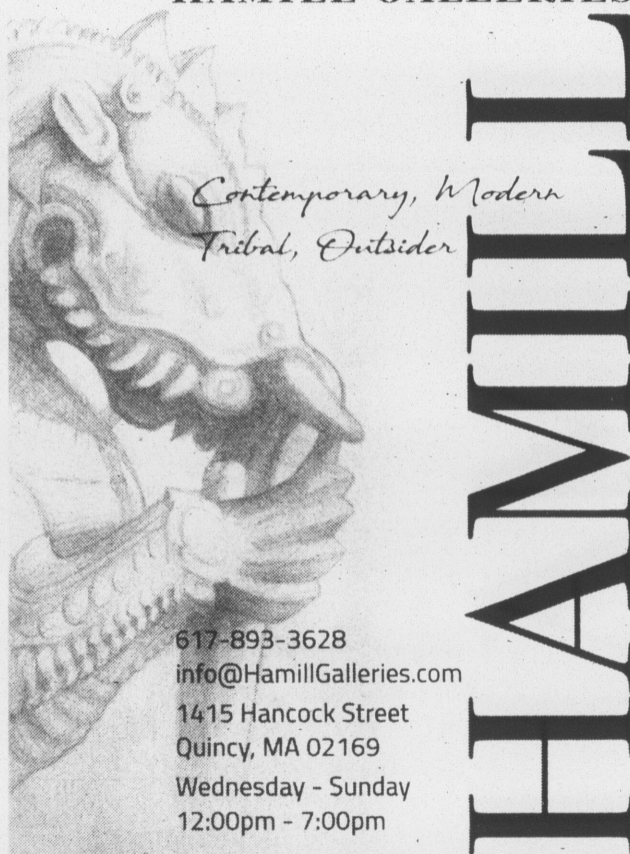

Crafting is a wonderful way to encourage conversation and honor grief together as a family. Some families make a special Christmas tree ornament or memorial wreath. One family created a holiday photo montage to display. Another family made a decorative holiday paper chain decorated with the deceased's photos and some of their favorite sayings. The options are endless.

The Gift of Memories:

Exchanging gifts is a significant holiday tradition. When a loved one dies, their gift to us is the loving memories we have shared and our holiday gift to them, and to others who mourn their loss, is to continue to share those memories. The Keohane Team knows that the holidays can be an especially meaningful yet often difficult time for those enduring loss. No matter how you remember your loved one, whether publicly through one of these memorialization ideas or privately by just holding that person in your thoughts and prayers, know that you are honoring them by keeping their legacy alive.

The cremation experts at Keohane hope that the holidays will be a time of comfort and peace for your family and remain committed to helping you honor and remember your loved ones. Please call us at 1-800-KEOHANE. We are here to help.

Registry Of Deeds Toys For Tots Drive Success

The 14th Annual Marine Corp Reserve Toys for Tots Drive at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds was a wonderful success, according to Register Bill O'Donnell.

"Every year many people come by, and are so generous in their giving," O'Donnell said. "This year we had a great bunch of toys ranging from dolls to footballs to puzzle and games to art supplies."

O'Donnell noted that during the past 14 years, approximately 2,100 toys have been collected by the Registry thanks to the generosity of Registry employees, county advisory board members, title examiners and the public.

"I would like to once again thank everyone for making the event such a tremendous success. Additionally, we are truly honored to partner with the Marine Corps Reserve in their Annual Toys for Tots drive which help makes the holiday brighter for more than 7 million children each year," O'Donnell said.

The register delivered the toys to Corporal Gerald Carries. This is the 72nd anniversary of Toys for Tots. The program operates in 800 cities and towns throughout all 50 states. Approximately 40,000 people each year are involved in the drive country-wide, ranging from Marines to volunteers.

3 Residential Projects OK'd By Board

By SCOTT JACKSON

At its most recent meeting, the Planning Board approved three separate residential projects that each feature four units.

The board on Dec. 11 approved Michael Grehan's request to build four townhouses at 12 Miller St.; Paul Feldman's proposal to create a new subdivision at 22 High St. that will allow for the construction of four single-family homes on site; and Donald Gillespie's plan to build four townhouses at 7 Faxon Park Rd.

The site at 12 Miller St. in West Quincy includes 12,122 square feet of land in a Business B zoning district. A single-family home is now located on site.

Thomas Cavanagh, Grehan's attorney, said his client had altered the proposal after it went before the board for the first time in October by reducing the number of units on site from five to four. Doing so increased the setback from the new building to the rear property line, he said.

Each of the new townhouses will have a two-car garage on its first floor.

Scott Kelley, whose home on Lyons Street abuts 12 Miller St., said the project was still too large even after the change from five to four townhomes.

"Even with the removal of the fifth townhouse unit... it is still too much for the lot of land he intends to build on. I believe a two- or three-unit development is the most that should be developed on that lot of land. Anything more than that would be offensive to the surrounding neighbors," said Kelley, who added he was prepared to challenge the board's approval of a four-unit proposal in court.

Before the vote, Gregory Galvin, the board's vice chairman, said Grehan was not seeking relief from the density requirements in the city's zoning code.

The property at 22 High St., which is located in the Penn's Hill neighborhood, includes 57,325 square feet of land in a Residence A zoning district. A single-family home is there presently.

The new subdivision, Patriot Lane, will include four parcels on which single-family homes could be built by-right. The new lots will range in size from 8,200 to 13,000 square feet, according to Christopher Harrington, Feldman's attorney.

"All of the lots are significantly larger than the minimum lot area, 7,650, they all have 50 feet of frontage and they all have a building envelope where the developer can build a single-family home within the allowable setbacks," Harrington said.

The developer plans to preserve trees and the stone walls around the perimeter of the site, Harrington added.

Feldman had initially proposed a subdivision with five new lots. The fifth lot was removed so that the cul-de-sac on the site could be reconfigured to meet the city's requirements.

Jorgette Theophilis, a Norman Road resident, spoke against the proposal during the board's meeting.

"It is going to completely change the character of our neighborhood," she said. "It is going to negatively impact the quality of life of residents. Density is going to increase, whether we are talking about population density, the number of cars, traffic, number of people smooshed into a small space. We're going to lose greenspace as well."

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall said he understood the zoning code allowed the subdivision but was concerned the project would worsen flooding problems in the neighborhood.

"Is there an opportunity to condition the permit to make sure once and if there is construction the neighborhood is protected?" Croall said. "There is a noticeable - and don't ask me, ask the people that live there - problem, particularly with backyards, as it pertains to water."

Rob Stevens, the city's deputy planning director, said the Department of Pub-

20-Unit Building Proposed At Washington, Edison Streets

By SCOTT JACKSON

Area residents said they were opposed to a proposal to build a 20-unit residential building at the corner of Washington and Edison streets in Quincy Point.

The project went before the Planning Board on Dec. 11. No vote was taken that night, and the applicant is slated to appear before the board again on Feb. 12.

Euro Investment Group of Boston, led by the Wojcik brothers, has proposed constructing the building at 386-388 Washington St. The site is now home to a single-story commercial building and a multi-family home. The developers plan to construct a surface parking lot for the new building at 17 Edison St., which is next door to 386-388 Washington St. The two-family home at 17 Edison St. would be renovated and kept as a two-family home.

The two parcels include 23,573 square feet of land. The Washington Street parcel is zoned Business B and the Edison Street one is zoned Residence B.

The Wojciks' proposal would include a 19-space parking garage located at the lower level of the new residential building. The 20 residential units would be split between four floors on top of the garage; 19 of the units would have two bedrooms and the remaining unit would have a single bedroom. The surface lot at 17 Edison St. would include 24 spaces, for a total of 43. The spaces would serve both the new building and the existing two-family home.

Vehicles accessing the site would enter it through a driveway on Edison Street. Edison Street is a one-way road, with traffic flowing from Washington Street to Southern Artery. The main pedestrian entrance would be on Washington Street with a side door on Edison Street.

Edward Fleming, the attorney for the developers, told the board his clients made changes to the plan following a neighborhood meeting held earlier this year. The initial plan, Fleming said, included a 20-unit building with two levels of parking underneath, with a total of 31 spaces. Neighbors at that time felt the building was too tall with too few parking spaces, he said.

"After we left the meeting, the Wojciks went back to the drawing board," Fleming stated.

To allay residents' concerns, the developers agreed to build a surface lot at 17 Edison St., which allowed them to increase the total number of spaces while reducing the height of the proposed new building, Fleming said.

"They saw that site at 17 Edison... as having ample land available that might allow them to expand the parking spaces to provide additional parking for the proposal, but also to make those surface spaces more visible and more accessible to visitors," he said. "And, it would overall improve the proposal because it would allow their architect to lower the height of the building."

Gregory Galvin, the board's vice chairman, said 43 parking spaces might be too many given the number of units on site. He also noted MBTA bus lines run along Washington Street to and from the Quincy Center station.

"I would almost like to see more greenspace back there than some of those parking spaces," Galvin said.

Fleming said his clients would be amenable to reducing the number of parking spaces and replacing them with greenspace if the board preferred that.

Five area residents spoke against the proposal during the Planning Board meeting.

"This is an old, antique, vintage neighborhood," said Anne Brusch, who lives next door to 17 Edison St. "My house is 130 years old and I don't know if I am going to be able to withstand this type of massive building."

Allen Rand, an Edison Park resident, said the proposal would increase traffic on Edison Street.

"My main objection... is the size of the building. It doesn't belong in the neighborhood with primarily single-family homes," Rand said. "The entrance to the garage and the parking spaces... is on Edison Street, which is going to increase the traffic tremendously over there."

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy said the neighborhood would support a smaller development on the site.

Burke Donates $2,000 For Sign At Souther Tide Mill

Some members of the board of Friends of Souther Tide Mill met recently with attorney George Burke in his North Quincy office.

Many stories were shared and enjoyed by all: Doug Morrill, president of the group; Carolyn Marks, former president; Anneli Johnson; Frank Hogan; Kathy Hogan and Burke.

On entering his office, the members were delighted to find that Burke actually has a mural of the Town River/Town Brook dock area, painted from the vantage point of the tide mill itself. This dock area is where John Souther carried out his shipbuilding business; and his saw mill was adjacent to it. He operated the Quincy Canal, which carried barges with granite from the quarries, and this took the barges to the waterfront where the granite was loaded onto the ships.

Burke later made a generous contribution of $2,000 to the Friends group to help them design and purchase an interpretative sign to be placed in front of the tide mill. Plans are under way.

"I know that the neighborhood wants it smaller. I know that the neighborhood isn't 100 percent against development on that corner," said McCarthy, who represents the neighborhood. "When you think of that corner, you wonder what is going to go there...a big single-family home is not going to end up there."

In addition, McCarthy said he has reached out to the city's traffic department to address traffic concerns on Edison Street, which he said has become a cut-through road for drivers looking to beat congestion on Washington Street.

Councillor Anne Mahoney said 20 units would be too many.

"I'm opposed to the number of units they are going to be putting there because of the neighborhood, because of where it is, and because they are going to be using Edison Street as their entranceway," she said. "Our job is to make sure it works with the neighborhood."

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall noted his colleagues voted earlier this year to increase the parking requirements for Residence B and C zoning districts from 1.75 spaces per dwelling unit to two; residential developments in Business B lots, like 386-388 Washington St., follow the Residence C zoning requirements.

"The Quincy City Council, in response to many of these meetings which we attend, has worked very hard to amend the ordinance as it relates to Residence C and requiring two parking spaces per dwelling unit," Croall said.

"It is an important part of the puzzle as we contemplate larger developments, we make sure they have adequate parking, particularly when we have established neighborhoods, like this section of Quincy Point."

Fleming said his clients would look to address the concerns raised by the residents and city councillors.

"We will continue to work through the concerns of the neighborhood and the councillors," he said.

lic Works would have to approve a stormwater permit for site. That is in addition to the departmental and peer review of the stormwater system that took place as part of the Planning Board process.

The site at 7 Faxon Park Rd. in Quincy Point contains 13,658 square feet of land in a Residence C zoning district. The lot, located on the corner of Quincy Avenue, is currently vacant.

The initial proposal for the site included six townhouse units. Cavanagh, who also represented Gillespie at the board's meeting, said the developer had reduced that to four townhouses.

Each townhouse will have a two-car garage on the ground floor. Another four guest spaces will be provided on site.

The first plan for the site would have included a trash storage area near the property line next to the adjacent apartment building on Quincy Avenue. Cavanagh said a trash storage area would no longer be needed on site following the move from six to four units; each unit would be able to take care of its own trash.

Croall said he had hosted several neighborhood meetings on the proposal prior to the Planning Board hearing. The developer, he said, had proposed as many as nine units on site but ultimately reduced that number to four.

"It's a tough lot, but if somebody is going to develop it, I think I am probably most comfortable with Don Gillespie because I know he is going to deliver," Croall said. "He has a track record in the city."

QHS Women's Athletic Hall Of Fame Seeking Nominations For 2020 Induction

Nominations Deadline Jan. 15

The Quincy High School Women's Athletic Hall of Fame is looking for nominations for the 2020 induction ceremony.

1. Must be a QHS Graduate
2. Must be 10 years out of high school

3. Must be a league all-star/or all scholastic and/or received a varsity letter

Coaches may also be nominated for the Hall of Fame. All nominations must be received by Jan. 15, 2020. Send nominees with a brief resume of the player and/or coach to:

QHS Women's Athletic Hall of Fame, Quincy High School, 100 Coddington St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Downtown Construction Activities

Proposed work activities for the week of December 15th, 2019

- Curbing for the island on Revere Road has been installed. The contractor is expected to pave around the island within the next week and remove the jersey barriers. Once paved there will be a dedicated left-hand turn lane from Revere Road onto Dennis Ryan Parkway with two lanes continuing straight onto McGrath Highway.
- NGRID Gas is working on an encroachment issue on Hancock Street at Cottage Avenue. Once the encroachment is fixed the new gas line going in for the City atrium and Nova Suites can be lived up and the hardscape(sidewalk) work in front of the new atrium can continued to be constructed.
- Sidewalk and curbing work will continue on Cottage Avenue. Follow the detour signs as the sidewalk along West of Chestnut will be closed down to pedestrian foot traffic when the sidewalk is being poured.
- Chestnut Street between Maple Street and Chestnut Place will be closed on Saturday, December 14th between 6am to 6pm so that a condenser unit can be installed on the roof of 1400 Hancock Street.
- The outbound lane in front of 1385 Hancock Street (the Stop & Shop building) will have a lane reduction in front of the building on Sunday, December 15th from 7am to 4pm for work being done to the building.

Ask John Paul: AAA New England's Car Doctor

I have a 2018 Silverado 1500 with 27,000 miles and recently the truck has started to flutter/buck slightly when accelerating. I really notice it more on the highway at 50-70 miles per hour, probably because roads are smoother. If I lift off the accelerator, then press it normally it flutters for a bit then stops when cruising. I brought it to the dealership, and they said it was bad transmission fluid and performed a "triple flush" but driving home from the dealership it still happens as before. Also, I should add the only thing different is that a month before the issue I changed the wheels and tires out from the stock 18-inch wheels to 20-inch Silverado wheels. I did this for the better look but felt the overall wheel/tire diameter would be the same. The old wheels/tires were 265/65/18 and the new wheels/tires are 275/55/20. Could this be the problem?

The wheel tire switch should not make a difference, the tire sizes are really close, I don't see that as a problem. There is less than 1/4 on an inch difference in overall height and revolutions per mile is within 10. At this point, I'm wondering if you are feeling the cylinder shut off system coming on and off. At this point I recently drove a 2020 GM vehicle that would switch between four-cylinder and six-cylinder operation and noticed a slight vibration at similar speeds as your truck, when dropping to four-cylinder mode. The vehicle that I drove I would consider it a characteristic rather than a problem. At this point, I would go back to the GM dealer and see if there is a software update to try to eliminate the condition.

I have a 1997 Ford Explorer, when I try to start it sometimes it will start and other times it won't catch. If I pump the gas pedal as I turn the key 90 percent of the time it will start. When it won't start, time is the only thing that gets it to fire up. I had it in a shop, and they changed fuel pump and many other things but no change, so they put back all the old parts. They think it needs to go to a dealer because only a dealer would have the tool needed to fix problem.

A couple of things come to mind, the crankshaft sensor, idle air valve and a poor ground to the ignition system. I'm guessing when the truck doesn't start there isn't any dash warning (check engine light of key issue). Like any gasoline engine, you need fuel, ignition and compression. A simple test, when it doesn't start is there spark, or will it fire up with starting spray? A simple spark tester will identify ignition problems. If the engine starts with starting spray, you know it is a fuel problem. Regarding taking the truck to a Ford dealer, I'm not sure that a Ford tech would be any more familiar with a 23-year-old Ford than any general service garage.

I have a 2000 Saab 9-5 wagon with 211,000 miles on the body. A used engine was installed 15,000 miles ago. I am experiencing a rumbling/bucking/near-stalling when I come to a stop after driving a few blocks. To prevent stalling at a stop, I quickly shift to neutral, and shift back to drive. It then begins to display the same problems but as I accelerate it smooths out. After a few miles it is okay for the rest of the drive. Except for this stalling and a little rust, as a third car it serves all my needs. My mechanic diagnosed this as a transmission problem. If I want to fix the car, he suggests a used low mileage transmission at a cost of $1,200 for parts and labor. I good used car would cost more than the repair.

I agree from your description - the issue presents as a transmission problem. I'm guessing that your shop looked for other issues and computer codes. Finding a good used transmission is always a challenge and finding one for an almost 20-year old Saab is a gamble. As a general rule the part from a salvage yard may be warranted but the labor is not, so if the replacement transmission fails you may be responsible for the labor to repeat the job. I would go to a transmission specialist to verify the transmission is the problem. It is always cheaper to fix an old car than buy a new one, but at 23 years old it may be time to move on.

My wife has a 2014 Honda CRV that she bought new that has recently developed an occasional no crank no start problem. Being five years old I suspected that the battery needed to be changed, but the battery checked out good, as did the starter and alternator. This happened once three months ago and again three weeks ago. It has started flawlessly in the last three weeks, even in very cold weather. A quick internet search revealed that this is a not an uncommon problem with these vehicles but there does not seem to be a consensus as to the cause. I'm interested in your thoughts.

We have seen many cases where the battery in this model has failed and as you pointed out the battery is five years old which is about how long (on average) batteries last. Honda did also update the battery management software on some vehicles to prevent a no-start condition. In earlier models the starter motor itself failed prematurely. At this point time may be the best diagnostic tool and waiting for the problem to be more consistent may be the only answer. Although if this were my vehicle and I planned to keep it, I would replace the battery.

I bought a 2020 Lexus NX300 and every time I plug my iPhone X into the USB port and Apple Car Play engages it shuts off the radio. It also seems to do some buggy things to my phone. I've tried to take pictures of the Lexus system screen as evidence and the iPhone camera software won't work. The dealer didn't find anything wrong. Any idea what is going on?

In the 2019 model there were issues with compatibility with some phones and the Pioneer radio system. The "fix" was to update the software on the radio. It has been my experience that in the new vehicles that I drive, only about 50 percent of the time my iPhone 6S (older model phone) works perfectly. Other times the phone could lock-up, navigation works, but no audio, Siri works intermittently, and my contact list is not available. I think it is a case of the technologies and operating systems change so fast they can't always merge perfectly with each other.

After reading one of your columns I recently purchased a Kia Soul. I really like the car and made a good choice with your help. The issue I have is since I purchased this car, all I see is Kia Souls on the road. Did they just get that popular?

The Kia Soul is a very popular rental car and commercial delivery vehicle for everything from auto parts stores to flower shops and many may have entered into the used car market as a reasonably good value. Now this is outside of my area of expertise but, why you are seeing so many Kia Souls may be psychological and referred Baader-Meinhof phenomenon. This is also known as frequency illusion. This happens when you have been told about something and then it seems to crop up all the time.

I have a new Hyundai Sonata with just over 7,000 miles on it. I've done the routine oil changes every 3,750 miles at the Hyundai dealer which uses conventional oil. I've asked about using synthetic oil, so I could stretch out the time between oil changes. I would like to go 10,000 miles between oil changes. It is just a regular engine so I would think synthetic would be just fine and last longer. What is your thought?

I believe there are enough advantages to synthetic oil to consider switching from conventional oil on just about every vehicle. Synthetic oil offers better lubrication in extreme temperatures, offers greater protection against wear and keeps the engine cleaner than conventional oil. The issue with your Hyundai is that there isn't any circumstance that the oil should be in the engine more than 7,500 miles. If this were my vehicle, I would not stretch the oil changes more than what the manufacturer recommends. Failing to do this could void the warranty.

I read your answer to the person who wanted to buy a car at an auction. The answer you should have said: "DON'T!" I went to a few open auctions in the '70's-'80's with my best friend the "motorhead." His opinion; the only vehicles there were ones that had failed to sell to experienced used car dealers and were only suitable for demolition derbies or parts cars, and sometimes not even that. And bringing a mechanic is essentially useless these days, since one can't inspect much of anything without serious equipment.

I agree that the auctions are fast paced and very hard for a novice. Even experienced buyers will sometimes buy a "clunker". This is why, for most used car buyers, it is better to buy from a dealer or private party and have the car inspected by a reputable repair shop.

I have a 2015 Honda CR-V that I like, but don't love. It rides hard and has quite a bit of road noise. I'm thinking about switching to a Jeep Compass or something comparable. What are your thoughts?

JOHN PAUL
AAA's Car Doctor

The Honda CR-V can get a bit buzzy at highways speeds, but most smaller SUVs will ride on the firm side. You might also want to give the latest CR-V a try, overall ride quality has improved. I would also look at the Toyota RAV-4, Hyundai Tucson, Volkswagen Tiguan and Subaru Crosstrek as alternative to your current vehicle. The Jeep Compass is a decent vehicle but, I believe there are better choices.

I am a crossing guard in a suburban town, so I spend a lot of time at intersections helping kids safely across the street. Since I have started the job, I have noticed some of the newer cars restart when they move forward after stopping. Is this normal or am I imagining things?

Many newer vehicles are designed to shut off at a stop to reduce vehicle emissions and save a bit of fuel. This auto-stop feature is sometimes referred to as a "mild-hybrid" system and over the lifetime of the can save a bit fuel.

Would you please give me your opinion: I want a small SUV that will handle the road year-round but I'm most concerned with snow and ice. I'm looking at the Hyundai Kona; I live in the city and need a reliable vehicle in the winter. Are there others I should look at?

The Hyundai Kona is a good choice as are all of Hyundai models. Some other vehicles to look at are the Subaru Impreza, Mazda CX-3 and Honda HR-V. That being said, any vehicle's winter performance will be greatly improved with four winter tires.

I bought a brand new 2019 Jeep Wrangler Unlimited, and unfortunately, at 2,700 miles, the vehicle engine seized. After being towed back to the dealership, they informed me that Jeep/Chrysler had agreed to replace the entire long block and they had not seen this issue before. In your opinion, is this usually a smooth process that results in a new-car feel?

You will be getting a completely new engine, so the only variable is the installation. If the technician is experienced and thorough there is no reason to think the vehicle shouldn't be better than it was when it was built.

I am thinking of installing a cold air intake on my 2016 Mercedes E350. Is this a wise decision?

Cold air intake systems are designed to deliver cooler outside air to the engine at a higher rate than the stock air intake system. The colder air is denser and contains more oxygen. The result should be more power due to improved combustion. It is my experience that in day-to-day driving about all a cold air intake system does is makes more noise. In a performance car, the benefit comes from wide open throttle and most commuting driving rarely involves that type of foot to the floor driving.

I purchased a 2009 Chevrolet Colorado about two years ago. It has about 112,000 miles on it and is reliable most days. However, four or five times since I have owned this truck the engine doesn't start. When I try to start it, I get complete silence. This typically happens when I have been running around doing errands, making multiple stops during maybe an hour of driving. I have tried a jumpstart and still nothing happens. If I wait 30 minutes, it starts right up and runs as good as

QNG Girls Hockey Edged By Fontbonne/Boston Latin

By TOM JOYCE

Both teams enjoyed immense success offensively and skated hard for 45 minutes.

The Quincy/North Quincy High girls' hockey co-op faced the Fontbonne Academy/Boston Latin Academy Ducks co-op at Shea Memorial Rink in Quincy Dec. 12th in their season opener. Although QNG scored often, they fell in the contest 9-8.

"There was a little too much offense on the other side," QNG head coach Jeff Craig said. "On our end, I was obviously happy with the offensive output. Anytime you score eight goals, you've got to be happy. We don't have a lot of players. We skated nine, but we hung in there and were tough. They have 20 kids over there, but I thought we battled against a physical team."

"We went down early and we didn't let the game get away from us," he added. "We battled back and it was back and forth for the rest of the game. We're rotating three on defense. We've just got to work on some things around the net. Our goalie just started playing last year, but she made some saves out there. We've only had maybe five practices so far."

The Ducks netted the first goal of the game about four minutes into the first period, taking a 1-0 lead. QNG countered a minute later. After putting up a strong shot with 10:16 which got saved by the Ducks, freshman Maggie Lynch capitalized on her second chance 23 seconds later, tying the game at one apiece.

In her varsity debut, Lynch had a team-high six goals for QNG.

"It's good. It makes a coach very happy when one kid can put in six," Craig said. "Her linemates played well. There were some times where as a team we could've moved the puck a little more, but you're not gonna complain when the team scores eight goals."

The Ducks responded

quickly -- with three unanswered goals. With 9:17 remaining, the Ducks took a 2-1 lead. About two minutes later, they capitalized on a power play opportunity and went up 3-1. Finally, they took a 4-1 lead with 4:31 left in the first on a hard line drive shot which landed in the left side of QNG's net.

Albeit they trailed early, QNG did not give up. Sophomore Orla O'Driscoll broke QNG's scoreless drought with 2:21 left in the period. She got a fast break and netted a wraparound goal for QNG, making it a 4-2 game. Then, with 47.5 seconds left in the first, QNG pulled within a goal 4-3 on a one-timer. Centered on the net, Lynch smacked a slapshot immediately off a precise pass from Maddie Bailey.

Momentum carried over to the second period for QNG and they quickly took the lead. With 12:57 left in the period, O'Driscoll scored a short-handed goal for the team, tying the contest at four apiece. Then, with 10:19 left in the quarter, Lynch pushed another goal into the net for QNG, giving them a 5-4 edge. This occurred with a number of players in a scrum around the net.

Throughout the period, QNG controlled possession and had a few viable shot opportunities. However, their next goal came late with 1:36 left in the period. Lynch scored on a second chance opportunity with the Ducks goalie misaligned.

The Ducks responded by winning faceoffs and netting two goals of their own in a minute span, tying the game 6-6; their second goal came on a wrap around.

Still, QNG led 7-6 after two periods because Lynch had a fast break and faked the opposing goaltender out, shooting high and getting the puck in the net.

To start the third and final period of the game, the Ducks tied the game at seven all with 11:15 remaining on a second chance opportunity out in front of the net.

The Ducks attempted to take the lead with an offensive stand with around eight minutes left in the game, but QNG's returning goaltender Emma Ford record three saves in a short span to prevent that from happening.

Eventually, the Ducks took the lead with 5:42 remaining on after a save on the right side of the net left the left side open. In response, Lynch bolted her way down to the Ducks side of the ice and rifled in the game-tying goal from inside the right faceoff circle with 4:51 remaining in the game.

As both sides hoped to gain an edge over each other late in the contest, the Ducks called a timeout. It worked in their favor as they scored with three minutes remaining with an opening on the left side of the net.

With about two minutes left, O'Driscoll had a tough shot opportunity stopped by the Ducks after beating the two-on-one coverage she faced from the opposition.

QNG found themselves at a disadvantage late in the game, drawing a two minute penalty with 1:21 remaining.

For the most part, QNG is a young team this season. Their key returnees this season include O'Driscoll and Bailey at forward, both of whom are sophomores, their classmate Morgan Novak on defense and junior Emma Ford in net.

Their second line this season will have multiple eighth graders.

"The good thing is there's a lot of kids coming up," Craig said, "so this will probably be the last year where we don't have a lot of numbers because the youth programs are looking strong in terms of numbers all the way down to the eight-year-olds."

Early in the season, Craig said one of the keys for the team with a small roster has been working on their conditioning.

He also noted that adding Katie Mulligan to the staff as an assistant coach has been beneficial for the team.

Quincy Boys Hockey Ties Cambridge Rindge & Latin

By TOM JOYCE

The Quincy High boys' hockey team fell behind in the third period, but some of their younger talent lifted them back up in the final minutes of the contest.

The Presidents hosted Cambridge Rindge & Latin at Quincy Youth Arena last Saturday night and although their opponent scored a go-ahead goal with 4:10 remaining in the contest, the Presidents finished the game strong and came out with a 3-3 tie. This put the team at 0-1-1 this season.

"We talked about character when we went down 3-2 and about not quitting," Presidents head coach Ted

Walsh Jr. said. "And we didn't quit. We have such an inexperienced group. We have some seniors, but a lot of them didn't play substantial minutes last year because we were so good last year. But the kids we have here, they're working. They're working hard at practice. What we're telling the boys right now is to keep everything positive. Tonight was a good character point for us. That's what we'll take from it."

"If a team doesn't have character, they'd just fold and quit," he added. "We didn't quit. As this game went on, we played better. In the third period, we outshot them nine to three. We had a couple of defensive mistakes, but that's going to happen with a young and inexperienced team. That's the stuff we can work on at practice."

Early on, the Presidents took a quick 1-0 lead with 12:24 remaining in the first period. Senior forward Thomas MacPherson netted the first goal of the game for the team, and Zach Galligan and Timmy Kelly had the assists on the score.

As the period progressed, CRL had their share of shot opportunities and with 3:01 left in the first they capitalized; they put up their first goal of the game, making it a 1-1 contest.

In the second period, the Presidents would regain the lead and maintain it for most of the third. Senior forward Nick Buonopane scored for the Presidents with 11:53 remaining in the second, assisted by senior forward Jake DeFranco, giving the team a 2-1 advantage.

Although the Presidents held a 2-1 advantage for much of the third period, CRL got hot offensively and put up two goals in about a one minute span to change the lead in the game.

First, CRL intercepted a Presidents pass, got a fast break and scored a goal which tied the game with 5:18 remaining. Then, with 4:10 left in the game, CRL had a heavy presence out in front of the net and one of their forwards poked in the go-ahead goal.

Previously in the period, the Presidents could not capitalize on the five-on-three advantage they enjoyed for 85 seconds starting with 7:46 remaining in the period. However, with 1:34 left in the contest, freshman Will Martin scored the game-tying goal for the Presidents. He sniped the puck between the CRL goaltender's legs, tying it up at three apiece.

"That line is a very talented young line," Walsh said. "To be honest, they could play with any line in the league. There's kids who play for hockey teams and they're not working at it year-round, and then there's hockey players, who are students of the game and dedicated to it all year. That line with Will Martin, Cam Quigley and Timmy Kelly are students of the game and they're gonna be a lot of fun to watch."

Late, it looked like CRL could regain the lead, but Presidents sophomore goaltender Daniel Freeman prevented that from happening. With 7.8 seconds remaining in the game, he stopped a CRL fast break shot, preserving the tie. Since the puck deflected hard off Freeman, CRL had no second chance scoring opportunity and time eventually expired.

"He played outstanding once again," Walsh said of his goaltender. "That's two games in a row for him where he's really played. I don't even know how you'd describe that save. Sometimes, the moment is too big for young kids, but the moment wasn't too big for him. He's ready for prime time."

This season, the Presidents roster features a combined 13 freshmen and sophomores, and Walsh has been impressed by the contributions from these younger classes so far.

"It's very encouraging," he said. "We've been pleasantly surprised. We knew they were good, but we didn't know they'd be ready for prime time so quick. They're very confident young men too, so I think we really have something to look forward to here."

"It's going to have to be a team effort this year," he added. "That's what we've been stressing. Everybody has to be pulling on the rope in the same direction."

NQ Boys Hockey Falls To Hanover

By TOM JOYCE

After going 17-6 last season and making it to the MIAA Division 3 South quarterfinal, the North Quincy High boys' hockey team is ready to compete once again this season.

A young team last year, the Red Raiders have most of last year's core returning w.dh playoff experience.

"It's very exciting," Red Raiders head coach Matt Gibbons said. "We talked about at the end of last year. We sat in that locker room and kids were crying. We just wanted to play one more game and it's finally back after nine months of not playing. It's good to have that core back too and some new guys added to that mix. Obviously, we miss the guys from last year, but it's exciting."

"I thought it was huge," he added of his players gaining playoff experience. "They put the work in over the summer whether it was in the gym and on the ice. I think they've done a lot of things together and are really motivated with that loss in the back of their minds. It didn't really show against Hanover, but they definitely put in the hard work."

To put themselves in the best position possible in terms of gaining experience during the season, the Red Raiders are set to play a tough schedule this season.

However, even inside of their league, they are bound to face many competent opponents.

One example of this would be the Hanover Indians, who went 17-3-2 last season. The Red Raiders hosted them at Quincy Youth Arena in their regular season opener on Saturday, Dec. 14 and fell 3-1.

Hanover took a 1-0 lead with 1:35 remaining in the first period on a goal and 1:13 into the second, they struck again to make it 2-0. On a breakaway with 4:40 left in the second, Hanover extended their lead to 3-0. In the third period, Ronan Kelly scored the Red Raiders' lone goal of the contest with about nine minutes remaining.

Now a junior, Kelly, a three-year varsity player, will be one of the team's leaders offensively this season.

"I think he's got to be a guy who can step up and put the puck in the net to help pick up where John Early, Noah Wines and Kieran O'Driscoll did last year," Gibbons said. "He's got to kind of elevate a little more."

On defense, Gibbons expects that his leader will be senior Cormac Flaherty.

"He needs to be the guy on defense," Gibbons said. "He's a senior now. He's a captain. In my opinion, he's one of the better players in the league. We're gonna really look to him and I think he accepts that kind of role and embraces it a little bit."

And in net, the Red Raiders have junior Asher Wines back in his third year as a starter.

"He's our backbone," Gibbons said. "He's our guy. He played well for us against Hanover. He played well for us down the stretch last year. He's now a three-year starter. The way he played last year, it's tough to say that he could play better, but as you develop you get better and better and hopefully, that happens with him."

"I think sometimes we get lackadaisical because we have Asher back there and that's something our guys have to focus on," he added. "We don't want to depend on him. We need to play tough in front of him to make sure his job is a little easier."

Additionally, Gibbons noted he has plenty of younger players who will contribute. In the sophomore class, this includes returning varsity players Mike Izzo and Johnny Lynch at forward and James Hooley on defense.

"It went well last year, but now we need them to elevate a little more," he said. "You've got to replace those three grads on offense and that's very difficult to do."

In terms of newcomers, the team also will have its share of contributors. BC High transfer Kevin Salmanowich will be one of their top-six forwards. A JV player last year, sophomore Mike Steele saw significant ice time in the season opener against Hanover. And freshmen Jake Rodgers and Noah Kearney have impressed Gibbons at practice early this season.

"You don't want to ask too much of them because they haven't been in that situation before but if you can get something out of them, that's huge," he said.

With the experience the Red Raiders have this season, they set a big goal for themselves.

"We want to be the last team playing," Gibbons said. "I think we got a sniff of it last year and played well, but we play in a really tough league and we've upped our schedule a little bit. We're not looking to repeat what we did last year record-wise. We're looking to be our best in the post-season. Who knows what will happen at that point? We want to get there and see what we can do."

To bolster their staff this season, the Red Raiders added a new assistant coach: Aaron Clancy, who is from Quincy and played college hockey at Westfield State.

Quincy Center Garage Open

By SCOTT JACKSON

The new 712-car garage on the former Hancock Lot in Quincy Center opened Monday afternoon.

The garage is free to use for hourly customers until Jan. 6. During that period, overnight and all-day parking will be allowed only for those with permits.

After the free period, it will cost $1 per hour to park in the garage for the first six hours. Those parking in the garage for six to eight hours will be charged $12, and it will cost $25 to park for more than eight hours.

The increase in rates after the six-hour mark "is to discourage all-day commuter parking," Chris Walker, the chief of staff to Mayor Thomas Koch, said Sunday.

The city spent $46.6 million to construct the new garage and the plaza between the new parking structure and the surrounding buildings. Funding for the work was included in an $80 million district improvement financing bond the City Council approved in June 2017. The DIF bond will be paid back by using new tax revenue created in the downtown.

The new garage will have room for 712 vehicles. It will have 130 parking spaces in its basement, 78 spaces on the ground level, 125 spaces on the second floor, 131 spaces each on the third and fourth floors, and 117 spaces on the roof. Sixteen of the spaces will be handicap accessible, and some of the spaces will have charging stations for electric vehicles.

Between one-fourth and one-third of the total spaces will be leased to developers Peter O'Connell and LBC Partners for tenants who move into new residential buildings on either side of the garage. O'Connell is constructing the 15-story, 140-unit Chestnut Place building, which is set to open in July 2020, while LBC's 171-unit Nova Residences opened earlier this fall.

Drivers will enter the new garage via Cottage Avenue initially. The roadway was widened and repaved to accommodate vehicles headed to and from the garage.

The city received a $2 million grant from the state earlier this month to extend the road now known as Cliveden Street across Hancock Street and into the new garage, providing a second point of access for drivers; Koch plans to rename Cliveden Street General Dunford Way in honor of Joseph Dunford Jr., the recently retired chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and a Quincy native.

Construction of the new road leading to the garage is expected to begin next summer, Koch said previously. The city will first have to acquire and demolish three buildings — 1534, 1546 and 1550 Hancock St. — before it can build the roadway. Funding to buy and raze those buildings was included in the $80 million DIF bond.

The new garage is located on the former Hancock Lot, which once contained some 500 parking spaces. The lot closed in phases last year as work on the new garage and the two new mixed-use buildings commenced.

The city also plans to construct a new parking garage in the vicinity of the Parkway on the opposite side of Hancock Street. City officials have said that garage would be built to hold as many vehicles as the one on the Hancock Lot, if not more.

ever. My local repair shop which is really good hasn't offered much help, with only "tow it in when it won't start." Of course, when I wait it restarts. Any ideas?

I suspect the problem is with an intermittent failure of the anti-theft system. Your truck like many General Motors vehicles has a PASSKEY antitheft system that reads the key each time it is inserted into the ignition. If the ignition is worn (common with this vehicle) the truck will have the same symptom as yours. Although before changing the ignition switch, I would check all of the electrical connections. Trying to jumpstart the truck rules out a faulty battery but not poor electrical connections.

I'm from Arizona and I'm concerned about the extreme frigid temperatures in the Northeast. What preventative steps can I take to make sure that my car runs the best it can? My 2016 Honda Accord has never seen temperatures under 50 degrees. I heard about wind chill temperatures of minus 30 degrees here last year.

It all starts with preventative maintenance. I would start with a test of the battery; the average life of a battery in the Northeast is just under five-years old. As a general rule, if the battery is three years old have it tested. The engine oil should be the proper grade, clean and full. Switching to synthetic oil, if you are using conventional oil, will provide easier starting and better cold weather lubrication. The engine coolant should be clean and protect the car to well below freezing. A 50/50 mix of coolant and water will protect the engine to 34 degrees below zero. Winter tires will also give your car better traction in cold wintery weather. Regarding windchill temperatures, that only affects people not cars.

I have a Honda Pilot that spent two weeks at the airport parking garage. When I came back from my trip the car wouldn't start so I called AAA. When they came out, they cleaned the battery connections and tested the battery. The guy determined the battery was just low on charge and everything was okay. He recommended that I have the battery fully recharged with a battery charger and rechecked just to make sure it was okay. The battery is fine, but windows are not working properly. Any suggestions as to why and how can I correct this issue? Did something happen when the AAA guy jumpstarted the car?

The problem is the battery became completely and the windows need to be reprogrammed. Follow this procedure; turn the ignition switch off, then back on. Move the driver's window all the way down by holding the driver's switch firmly down to the second detent, when the window reaches the bottom, hold the driver's window switch in the auto-down position for 2 seconds. Then move the driver's window all the way up without stopping by holding the driver's switch firmly up to the second detent. When the window reaches the top, hold the driver's window switch in the auto-up position for 2 seconds, this should reprogram the system.

Norfolk County RE Lending Activity Up 50% In November

Continuing a pattern seen throughout the latter half of 2019, Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell reports lending activity, spurred by continued low interest rates, showed a healthy increase for the month of November in Norfolk County.

"As we have seen over the past few months, there was a significant increase with lending activity," O'Donnell said. "A total of 2,893 mortgages were recorded in November, a 50 percent increase compared to November 2018. Also, the total amount of money borrowed against Norfolk County properties in November was $1.8 billion, a 53 percent increase compared to the previous year. These lending statistics are compelling evidence that positive trend lines relative to lending continue unabated in Norfolk County. Consumers are definitely taking advantage of low interest rates to refinance existing mortgages and finance major capital expenditures."

During November, the number of county real estate transactions was flat compared to the previous year. A total of 1,473 properties, both residential and commercial, were sold compared to 1,477 in November 2018. The average real estate price, combined for both residential and commercial properties, rose 8 percent to just over $1 million dollars. However, total dollar real estate sales for the month actually decreased 5 percent to $867.5 million.

"Despite the high real estate costs and challenges with available inventory, consumers still view Norfolk County as a desirable location to live and raise a family," O'Donnell said.

to avail themselves of the benefits of the Homestead Act. During November, 1,035 Homesteads were recorded, a 1 percent increase year over year.

"A Homestead," O'Donnell noted, "provides limited protection against the forced sale of a homeowner's primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000. If they have not done so already, Norfolk County homeowners would be prudent to consider this important consumer protection tool."

In some conflicting real estate data, November saw a 24 percent decrease in the number of foreclosure deeds recorded. A total of 13 foreclosure deeds were recorded compared to 17 during the same timeframe in 2018. However, this encouraging news was offset by a 23 percent increase in the number of Notice to Foreclose Mortgages, the first step in the foreclosure process, recorded during the month.

In response to these figures, O'Donnell said, "After seeing a reduction in the number of Notice to Foreclose Mortgage recordings during the previous month,

On Sunday, Dec. 8, at approximately 8 p.m., Officers McNeil, Tait and Sansevero were dispatched to the Quincy Walmart for a report of a wallet stolen from a shopping cart.

While en route, Quincy Police Communications relayed that the suspects just fled the store in a gray Dodge Durango with license plate provided, occupied by a male and a female.

As Officer McNeil arrived on scene, Officer Tait radioed he had the vehicle in question stopped at Presidential Estates on Southern Artery. Officer McNeil redirected to Officer Tait's location where he found the occupants to be cooperative. Both occupants provided identification which showed no warrants and minimal criminal histories totaling 2-3 offenses each.

Meanwhile, Officer Sansevero went to Walmart and spoke with loss prevention officers and to review video footage of the incident. The loss prevention officer had a female victim with him. The video showed the male and female suspect approach the female victim's shopping cart just as the victim walks briefly away from it to a nearby product shelf.

The male suspect is seen looking into the victim's purse multiple times while also checking his surroundings. The female suspect is shown looking at items on the shelf in the store in between the male suspect and the victim, as if blocking the view of the victim to the male suspect.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

With the victim about 10 feet away from her purse, the male suspect reached into the victim's purse and removed her black wallet. The suspects then proceeded to exit the store with their young daughter.

Officer Sansevero relayed this information to Officers McNeil and Tait, who asked the male suspect if he had taken a wallet from Walmart. The suspect said he found a wallet on the Walmart floor and planned on dropping it in the mail so it could be returned. When asked why he simply did not hand over the wallet to loss prevention at Walmart, the male suspect reiterated, "I just figured I would bypass loss prevention and drop it in the mail."

At this point, Officer McNeil had the male suspect step out of the vehicle and then placed him under arrest for larceny from a building. The male suspect then said, "You're not even going to hear my side of the story?" Officer Tait told the suspect the entire interaction was on video which prompted the suspect to say, "Oh. That's fair."

The male suspect, a 25-year-old Braintree resident, was transported to the station for booking. The female suspect, a 33-year old Dorchester female, was advised that she would be summonsed to court on the same charge for her role in the larceny, mainly because one of the suspects needed to care for their daughter. She denied knowing that the male suspect took the wallet until they left the Walmart parking.

Officer McNeil then took the wallet back to Walmart where it was returned to the victim. The victim, very thankful, examined her wallet and confirmed that all the contents were there. Due to the suspect's daughter being present, a 51A report was filed.

Nice Work!

In this case, the victim was fortunate to get her wallet back and it was only because of loss prevention officers monitoring the situation. Cancelling and replacing numerous credit cards is a tedious task and the loss of money in your wallet may never be recovered.

Better way to shop: Bring only the credit card(s) that you plan on using. Don't carry a purse or wallet - instead, just keep the cards, your ID and cash in a front pocket, which reduces the chance of being a victim of a pickpocket!

OBITUARIES

John H. Travers, 73

A funeral Mass for John Henry Travers, 73, of Quincy, formerly of Hingham, was celebrated Dec. 14 in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Mr. Travers died peacefully Dec. 11 at his home, surrounded by his loving family.

Born in Weymouth, he was raised in Hingham and was the son of the late John H. and Anne (Regan) Travers and attended local schools. Mr. Travers graduated from Hingham High School with the Class of 1964. Following high school, he enlisted in the United States Marine Corps. He proudly served his country during the Vietnam War. John earned the rank of corporal and was honorably discharged on Dec. 12, 1969. After his honorable discharge, Mr. Travers worked for the Town of Hingham Highway Department as a supervisor. He enjoyed his work and the relationships he built throughout the years. Mr. Travers happily retired in 2008 after 38 years of public service. In his spare time, he enjoyed vacationing in Maine, supporting his fellow veterans, taking care of his home and spending time with his family and friends.

JOHN H. TRAVERS

Mr. Travers was the beloved husband of Helen A. Travers. The two married on May 27, 1989 and together they shared 30 years of loving marriage. He was the devoted father of John H. Travers, Jr. and Michael C. Travers, both of Quincy. John was the dear brother of Gerard L. Travers of Hingham and the late Christine O'Brien. He is also survived by many loving nieces and nephews.

Interment at Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Wounded Warrior Project, P.O. Box 758517, Topeka, KS 66675.

Lorraine M. Quinn

A funeral Mass for Lorraine M. (McInnis) Quinn of Squantum, originally South Boston, was celebrated Dec. 13 in St. Francis of Assisi Church, Braintree.

Mrs. Quinn died Dec. 9.

She adored her family and was so proud of her grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Anyone she talked to would get the latest news on their accomplishments. She loved to dance, sing, and also travel, especially to St. Petersburg, FL to visit her sister.

Mrs. Quinn was born and raised in South Boston until moving to Squantum in 1952 with her husband Thomas to start a family. She worked for the United States Postal Service for 40 years as a clerk and retired at the age of 70.

She was a loving, selfless, and outgoing woman who was a friend to all. Mrs. Quinn had a great sense of humor, was giving, and so proud of her family. She will be greatly missed by all who knew her.

Beloved wife of the late Thomas A. Quinn. Loving mother of Maureen Knight and her husband Rusty of Squantum, Thomas Quinn of Plymouth, Michael Quinn and his wife Paula of Raleigh, and Lorrie Fennell and her husband Rickey of Marshfield. Cherished sister of Jean Osterhout of St. Petersburg, FL, Pat Francis and her husband Robert of Quincy, and the late Dorothy Horan and her surviving husband Joseph, the late Irene Donovan, Rita McPhee, and Alfred McInnis. Proud Grammie of Michael Kenney and his wife Crystal, Conor, Brendan, Kayla, and Colleen Quinn, and Richie, Patrick, and Gregory Fennell and Great Grammie of Kayla and Emily O'Malley. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

LORRAINE M. QUINN

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38105.

Patricia L. Spring, 88

A Mass of Christian Burial for Patricia L. (Tynan) Spring, age 88, was celebrated Monday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Spring died peacefully Dec. 8.

She was the devoted wife of the late Philip S. Spring and loving mother of her five children, Ellen, Philip, Susan, Jane, and David, as well as a doting grandmother to her six grandchildren, William, Michael, Perry, Emma, Martin, and Bradford.

Born in South Boston to Dr. Joseph P. Tynan and Katherine G. Tynan (Tivnan) in 1931, she was the beloved sister to John "Doc," Sabina, Kevin, and Emmett Tynan. Mrs. Spring attended St. Brigid's Catholic School, Notre Dame Academy, and Boston State College, until she married Philip Spring in 1951 and moved to Quincy, where she lived for sixty-five years.

She fully enjoyed life and was involved in many social clubs, including the St. Ann's Mariannes, Wollaston Mothers' Club, Squantum Yacht Club, and Southern Artery Writing Club. She taught CCD and belonged to the YMCA, where she enjoyed swimming and aerobic exercise.

PATRICIA L. SPRING

Mrs. Spring loved her garden and her pets, and was an avid Patriots fan, never missing a game. She had a love of classic movies, Jeopardy, and crossword puzzles. Her favorite pastime was singing and dancing, whether in a charity fundraising variety show, or out at a Saturday night dance. Mrs. Spring loved to be the life of the party, always joking and sharing funny stories. She will be deeply missed by all who knew her.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by Dolan Funeral Home, Milton.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Cancer Society-Boston, 125 S. Huntington Ave, Boston, MA 02130.

Philomena M. Ritchie, 92

A funeral Mass for Philomena M. "Phyllis" (Novello) Ritchie, 92, of Quincy was celebrated Tuesday in St. Joseph's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Ritchie died Dec. 9 with her family by her side.

She grew up in Roxbury, later moving to Quincy and Weymouth. She worked for many years as a corsetiere at Lady Grace in Pembroke, Braintree and Quincy. Mrs. Ritchie adored her family and loved spending time with them. She also enjoyed shopping, cooking, traveling and visits to the beach.

Beloved wife of 65 years to the late John W. Ritchie. Loving mother of John Ritchie and his wife, Denise, of Boxford, Eileen Sechovicz and her husband, Jerry, of Weymouth, Frederick Ritchie and his partner, Joseph Burke, Jr., of Quincy, Theresa Katsilieris and her husband, Nick, of Hingham, William Ritchie and his wife, Paula, of Abington, Mary Ritchie, Det. Capt. MSP and her wife, Kathy Bush, of Framingham, and Joseph Ritchie and his wife, Christine, of Weymouth. Proud Noni to Sara, Nicole,

PHILOMENA M. RITCHIE

George, Christina, Michael, Cassandra, Meghan, Joseph, Brooke, Ryan and William and Great Noni of Sophia, Isabella, Aaliyah, Francesca, Dennis III, Luca, Nicholas, John, Joseph, Beverly and more to come. Also survived by many nieces and nephews. Predeceased by her parents; Federico and Josephine and her siblings; Frances, Louise, Guitano, Anthony, Harry and Joseph.

Interment at Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Funeral arrangements were made by McDonald Keohane Funeral Home, South Weymouth.

Memorial donations may be made to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38105 or a charity of your choice.

OBITUARIES

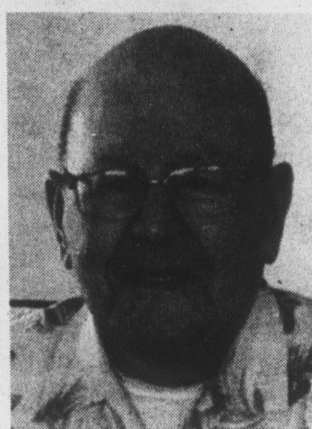

Joseph Connolly, 93

A funeral Mass for Joseph Connolly, age 93, a longtime Quincy resident, was celebrated Tuesday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy, followed by military honors.

Mr. Connolly died peacefully Dec. 12 at the John Scott House Rehabilitation and Nursing Center, in the comfort of his loving family.

He was born in County Galway, Ireland, to the late Martin and Bridget (Madden) Connolly and was raised and educated on the island of Feenish. He immigrated to the United States in the late 1940s and lived in Dorchester before moving to Quincy in 1965.

Mr. Connolly proudly served in the United States Army during the Korean War. He was employed as a park ranger with the U.S. Park Service for fifteen years and was assigned to the Charlestown Navy Yard and the home of the USS Constitution. Mr. Connolly was an avid New England Patriots and Boston Red Sox fan.

Beloved husband for sixty-five years of Catherine "Kitty" (Connolly) Connolly. Devoted father of Barbara Atwater and her husband Randy of Winter Park, CO, Joseph Connolly of Quincy, Elizabeth Ouellette and her husband Denis of Quincy, Bridget Greenwald and her husband Scott of Franklin, John Connolly of Quincy, Judith Flaherty and her late husband Michael of Weymouth, and Kathy McNeice and her husband Michael of Marshfield. Loving grandfather of Paul and Jennifer Ouellette, Victoria and Laura Greenwald, and Shawn and Lilli McNeice.

Mr. Connolly was the last of four siblings and was predeceased by John Connolly, Mary Lydon, and Martin Connolly. He is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Macular Degeneration Foundation, P.O. Box 515, Northampton, MA 01061-0515 or at macular.org.

The Connolly family would like to acknowledge and thank the professional nursing staff and healthcare providers at the John Scott House and the Norwell VNA and Hospice for their loving care and dedication.

Chazy Dowaliby, 69

A private memorial service for Chazy Dowaliby, retired executive editor of The Patriot Ledger in Quincy and The Enterprise of Brockton, is being planned for January.

Ms. Dowaliby died Dec. 9 at Massachusetts General Hospital after a long battle with cancer. She was 69 and had been living in Newbury after many years in Quincy.

Her first newspaper stint was at the Eagle Tribune in Lawrence, her hometown. Among more routine assignments, she covered Woodstock and interviewed Janis Joplin.

In 1972, Ms. Dowaliby left a job at Boston City Hall in 1972 to work for Joe Biden's longshot run for Senate, quickly moving into the role of press secretary. After Biden's election, she stayed on his staff for a year, left and didn't see him again until he invited her to his inauguration as vice president.

Returning to journalism, Ms. Dowaliby was a reporter in New York and New Jersey before becoming an editor with Ingersoll Publishing.

CHAZY DOWALIBY

She served as president, publisher and chief operating officer of the company's Suburban Newspapers of Northern New Jersey and later as editorial director of Ingersoll newspapers in England and three national publications in Dublin.

In 1991, she founded Chazy Dowaliby and Associates, a consulting firm that specialized in start-ups, internal communications strategies and image creation in northern Europe and Malta.

At The Enterprise and The Patriot Ledger, Ms. Dowaliby conceived and served as the driving force of the newspapers' holiday funds, Helping Hands and Lend A Hand, which have raised more than $3 million over 21 years to help hundreds of needy residents of southeastern Massachusetts.

In 2016, she was inducted into the New England Newspaper Hall of Fame.

After stepping down as editor, Ms. Dowaliby took a job as director of communications, marketing and outreach of the Institute of Politics at the John F. Kennedy School of Government. She retired in 2018.

She leaves three sisters and their families.

Memorial donations may be made to Lend A Hand, The Patriot Ledger, 2 Adams Place, Quincy 02169, or call 617-424-9825; Helping Hands, The Enterprise, Box 2866, Brockton 02305 or call 781-340-2028, or to Massachusetts General Hospital, Development Office, 125 Nashua St., Suite 540, Boston 02114.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Marjorie A. Morrissey

A funeral Mass for Marjorie Ann (Moore) Morrissey of Quincy was celebrated Monday in St. Mary's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Morrissey died Dec. 12.

She was proud to be a homemaker caring for her husband, children, and grandchildren. She loved to travel, to dance, to sew, to knit, and over the past several years she knitted over 250 "Hats for Sailors." Mrs. Morrissey could often be seen at rinks, fields, auditoriums throughout the area cheering on all of her grandchildren in their activities. Sundays were always spent with family and friends by the pool, her favorite place.

Beloved wife of 69 years to Richard F. Morrissey of Quincy. Devoted mother of Nancy Stone and her husband Michael of Quincy, Jane Sullivan and her husband Paul of N. Attleboro, Maryellen Concannon and her husband Bill of Rockland, Susan Morrissey of Quincy and the late Richard F. Morrissey, Jr. Cherished Gram of 9 grandchildren and Gigi to 6 great-grandchildren. Predeceased by 3 brothers and 1 sister. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Exceptional Citizens Week at Camp Fatima, 32 Fatima Rd., Gilmanton Iron Works, NH 03837.

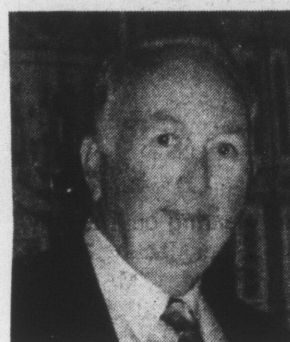

John Princiotta, 87

A funeral Mass for John Princiotta, 87, a lifelong resident of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Mr. Princiotta died Dec. 9 at his home.

He was the beloved husband of 62 years of Katherine (Nemet) (Kelley) of Quincy, and the son of the late Tindaro "Tom" Princiotta and Frances Concetta (Mollica). Mr. Princiotta joined the United States Marine Corps in 1952. He served in the Military Police, in Japan, during the Korean War. After his honorable discharge from the Marines he joined the United States Postal Service. Mr. Princiotta was with the Postal Inspection Service in Boston, MA, and, later in his career, he was appointed as tour superintendent at the General Mail Facility, retiring after many years of federal service. Mr. Princiotta was a member of the VFW, NAPS and was an officer, at the local level, of NARFE.

He and Katherine met while dancing at Mosley's in

JOHN PRINCIOTTA

Dedham. They were married on April 28, 1957 at Sacred Heart Church in Quincy. They enjoyed many evenings dancing in all the local venues. After retiring, he and Katherine spent winters in Deerfield Beach, FL. During the summer months, Mr. Princiotta did financial work for several area golf courses. He enjoyed the work and the company of the local golf pros, most recently at the Marshfield Country Club.

Mr. Princiotta was the devoted father of John Princiotta, Jr. and his wife Marie of Quincy, and Julie Anne Princiotta and her husband Kevin Barry of Quincy, and was the step-grandfather of Kathleen Barry and her husband Eric Graber, Timothy Barry and his wife Fran, Garrett Barry and his wife Sherry, Monica Needle and her husband Bryan, and Mary Tracy and her husband Chris. John was the brother of Thomas F. and his wife Dolores E. Princiotta, Gerald P. and his wife Catherine Princiotta, and the late Anthony and James V. Princiotta, and Grace F. (Princiotta) Cordone and her husband Anthony F. Cordone. He is survived by his sister-in-law, Amelia R. (Durante) Princiotta, of Quincy, and many nieces and nephews.

Interment at Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Sacred Heart Church, 386 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02171, or the Quincy Police Cops For Kids With Cancer Fund by visiting copsforkidswithcancer.org.

OBITUARIES

Lawrence M. Curtin, Sr.

A funeral Mass for Lawrence M. "Larry" Curtin Sr. of Braintree, formerly Quincy, will be celebrated Friday at 11:30 a.m. in St. Francis of Assisi Church, Braintree.

Mr. Curtin died Dec. 14.

He was born in Quincy to the late David and Cecelia Curtin. He graduated in 1950 from Quincy High School, where he excelled in football as the left tight end. Mr. Curtin was a proud U.S. Army veteran serving during the Korean War and at the time of his separation earned his rank as sergeant. For many years, Mr. Curtin worked for New England telephone where he later retired from. His family was his world and he loved to spend time with them.

Beloved husband of 45 years to the late Dorothy A. Curtin (Gallo). Loving father of Linda J. Curtin of Braintree, Laura A. Redington and her husband Tom of Braintree, Lawrence M. Curtin Jr.

and his wife Janet of Springfield, VA, Gerard F. Curtin and his wife Michelle of Plymouth and Patrick M. Sr. and his wife Marie of Braintree. Proud Pa of Jenna Curtin, Meghan Atwell, Caitlin Redington, Chris Redington, Tommy Redington, Alyssa Redington, Kim Curtin, Larry Curtin, Gerard Curtin Jr., Patrick Curtin Jr., Ryan Curtin and Dylan Curtin and Great Pa of Patrick Curtin III. Also survived by many nieces and nephews. Predeceased by his siblings, Edna Marini, David Curtin Jr., James Curtin and Marion Fitzgerald.

Visiting hours are 4 to 8 p.m. Thursday in McDonald Keohane Funeral Home, South Weymouth. Relatives and friends will gather in the funeral home at 10:15 a.m. on Friday.

Interment at Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Shun Ling Li, 65

A Chinese rite service for Shun Ling Li, 65, was held Dec. 12 in St. Michael Crematory.

Ms. Li died peacefully Dec. 10 at home with her family by her side.

She was the beloved mother of Pei Qi Lee and her husband William Lee of Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel-Lydon Chapel & Cremation Ser-

Mr. Kelly was first elected to the Ward 1 seat in 1973 and served until 1984, when he left to become a project manager for the Quincy Housing Authority. Mr. Kelly successfully ran for the Ward 1 seat again in 2003 and was re-elected two times after that. He later served as a Quincy Housing Authority commissioner.

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy said Mr. Kelly was long associated with the district. "When you say Ward 1, people say Leo J. Kelly. He was synonymous with Ward 1," McCarthy said. "Leo was involved in everything."

McCarthy credited Mr. Kelly with helping establish the Manet Community Health Center; stopping the state's plan to build a sewage treatment on Nut Island, where a park is now located; and preserving open space and parks in the area, including the Crusher, Broad Meadows and Brill Field. Mr. Kelly was also well-known for helping constituents.

City Council President Brad Croall said Mr. Kelly was known for helping people out.

"I got to know Leo Kelly earlier through volunteering in the community. What a gentleman," Croall said. "[He] did a lot of things kind of under the radar to help people and isn't that what this is all about."

Visiting hours for Mr. Kelly will be held Thursday from 4 to 8 p.m. at the Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, located at 74 Elm St. in Quincy. There will be a gathering at the funeral home Friday at 9 a.m. prior to a funeral Mass at Most Blessed Sacrament Church, 1015 Sea St., at 10 a.m.

Interment will be at Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

A complete obituary will be posted online at thequincy-sun.com once available.

on the first floor and 30 units of permanent supportive housing on the two floors above.

"We looked at this as an opportunity to look at a new model to address homelessness in the city of Quincy," he said. "We've looked at a model that would not just be a nighttime emergency shelter but would really be what we call a housing resource center that would operate 24-7 instead of releasing people during the daytime and having no place to go."

The new emergency shelter, Yazwinski said, would include 75 beds, a number that could increase based on demand. The shelter now has 105 beds, he said, though as many as 145 people spend the night there during the winter.

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy, whose district includes Broad Street and the surrounding area, said all stakeholders will benefit from the proposal.

"The entire project on Broad Street, when it finally comes to fruition, is going to benefit all and it's going to benefit Fr. Bill's also," he said.

City Council President Brad Croall said the current police station has outlived its useful life.

"Obviously this is a substantial need from my lens to replace the current infrastructure that is there and way past its useful life," he said.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said he supported borrowing money to finance capital improvement projects, like the new public safety headquarters, but he suggested Quincy follow the lead of other communities which put together five- or ten-year capital plans that include items such as buildings, vehicles and equipment that will require replacement during that period, along with projected costs.

"I still feel as though we lack a long-term capital plan," Palmucci said. "Our infrastructure needs are well-known, yet their costs are not planned for in a document."

The current police station was built in 1925 and renovated in the 1980s. Police Chief Paul Keenan in the spring told councillors that the building is not handicap accessible and its elevator is unreliable, has an HVAC system that cannot properly heat or cool the building, and has a leaking roof, among other issues.

The firehouse on Quincy Avenue was built in 1936. Todd Costa, an architect with the firm Kaestle Boos, said this spring that moving command staff to the new Sea Street building would give the department more space in which to operate.

The city had considered moving the Health, Inspection Services and Veterans Services Departments to the new public safety headquarters. The plan for the site that was presented to councillors in the spring included a second wing on the new building for those three departments, but the plan was altered before the latest version was presented to the council in November.

Koch at that time said placing those three departments in the new building with police, fire and emergency management would be "a little too aggressive."

STUDENTS FROM THE North Quincy High School Air Force Junior ROTC gather at Flags for Veterans Island at a tree lighting ceremony held by the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette Legion Post. Two trees on the island were illuminated in honor of the students for their dedication and volunteerism at the island. Each spring and fall the students help decorate the island with 400 American flags that represent veterans who were killed in action, have passed away or are still serving in the armed services. The flags are installed in observance of the Memorial Day and Veterans Day holidays. Joining the students and their leaders are SAL Commander Paul Moody and Santa Claus (front row). Lending Activity Up 50% In November the increase we saw in November was a bit troubling. At the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, my staff and I are working with our partners to help anyone facing the challenges of paying their mortgage. The Quincy Community Action Programs, 617-479-8181 x376 and NeighborWorks Housing Solutions, 508-587-0950 have highly qualified staffs who can help any homeowner who has received a Notice to Foreclose Mortgage document.

"Additionally, another option available to a homeowner is to contact the Massachusetts Attorney General's Consumer Advocacy and Response Division (CARD) at 617-727-8400."

O'Donnell concluded: "While the Norfolk County real estate sales activity has seemingly leveled off, the same cannot be said about the lending market. It remains hot. As long as interest rates remain low, I see healthy lending numbers continuing. One caveat is the uncertainty surrounding where the local, state and national economies are heading as we enter the 2020 calendar year.

"The Registry will continue to closely monitor economic data to see how it will affect the real estate and lending markets in Norfolk County as we move forward to the next decade," he added.

Hobin Scores 26 For NQ

Despite a tremendous individual performance by junior Fallon Hobin, the Red Raider girls basketball team dropped a hard fought 59-52 decision to the host Dolphins of Dennis-Yarmouth.

Hobin, a transfer from Quincy High, was a force from the opening tip scoring all of North's points in the opening quarter as the visitors trailed 13-8 entering the second stanza. Hobin, Amanda Hellmuth, Alex Abrahamovich and Bridget Capone helped the Red and Black close the deficit to one at halftime, 30-29. North scored 21 second quarter points with Hobin netting 5, Hellmuth, a senior captain draining two three pointers, and Abrahamovich scoring 5, including a three from the top of the area.

North fell behind by 12 after three, managing only 7 points while DY had 18. A furious rally by North gave the visitors a brief lead as the Red and Black's smothering defense put the clamps on the Dolphins' offense, allowing them only one field goal in the quarter. Again it was Hobin leading the way as she poured in 10, including two hoops from three point range. The difference in the quarter was DY's ability to hit their free throws making 21 of 32 for the game.

Hobin led all scorers with her 26, the most scored by a North player since Grace Geary hit 30 against Quincy. Hellmuth added 11 while Abrahamovich, Alexa Radzik and Capone had 7, 5 and 4 respectively. Capone also led the team in rebounding with 8.

North played its home opener Tuesday vs Hingham at Walter "Cap" Bryan Gymnasium and hosts Haverhill on Friday, also at 6:30 p.m.

CHRISTMAS IN CHURCH

lights the way to the spirit and brotherhood of Christmas

Lighthouse Fellowship Church

Lighthouse Fellowship Church, 73 Newbury Ave., corner of Newbury Avenue and Sagamore Streets, North Quincy, will celebrate the birthday of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

The celebration will begin on Friday, Dec. 20th when all the church gathers to sing in the Praises to our King. This musical event will consist of a medley of Christmas songs interspersed with the biblical story of Christmas. All are invited.

On Sunday, Dec. 22nd, at 10 a.m., the theme of the regular Sunday service will be to welcome in the birth of our Savior and to thank him for all the blessings we have received. Pastor Mike will be preaching about the Birth of Jesus from the first Chapter of Matthew. It is only through the power of the Holy Spirit that our Church continues to grow and serve the neighbors and community with love.

As the church looks forward to the New Year many outreaches planned. The activities vary from neighborhood parties to Mission Trips to the far corners of the world. For the fourth year in a row, the church send a team to Athens Greece to bring food and sustenance to the marginalized refugees and to share the Saving Gospel with them.

St. Chrysostom Church

St. Chrysostom Church, located at 1 Linden St. in Wollaston, will hold a Christmas Eve Eucharist service at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 24.

The service will include the children's choir, music program and liturgy.

United First Parish Church

The United First Parish Church (Unitarian Universalist), located at 1306 Hancock St. in Quincy, will hold two services on Christmas Eve, Tuesday, Dec. 24.

The family service will begin at 4 p.m. followed by the lessons and carols service at 7 p.m.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your love of the holidays creates a special bond between you and the people in your life. Use this as a way of building stronger relationships that will carry over well beyond this time.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A new approach could go a long way toward resolving a painful estrangement, especially at this holiday time. And since your aspects favor friendship this week, why not go ahead and try it?

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your positives continue to dominate, and any negative factors that squeeze in can be dealt with easily. The secret is to tackle them at once and not allow them to benefit by your neglect.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Good news: A colleague's remarks could help you move toward ultimately resolving that persistent workplace situation. Meanwhile, enjoy the holidays with loved ones.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) No one reflects the bright holiday more than all you Leos and Leonas who love the shimmer and glimmer of the season. P.S.: There just might be a very special something from Santa.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Celebrate the holidays by being more receptive to new experiences. Overriding the Virgo reluctance to try new things could be the best gift you've given yourself in a long while.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Good news about a loved one makes the holidays even more festive. Expect some unexpected gifts, so be prepared with a few nicely wrapped packages of goodies to offer in return.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The holiday season provides an opportunity to meet new people, some of whom you might even consider "worthy" enough to join the Scorpio's select group of friends.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You always bring your own wonderful sparkle and light to the holidays, and don't be surprised if this year someone special reaches out to respond to your warmth in kind.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Togetherness is the dominant theme for the Goat's holiday celebrations this year. That means reaching out to bring everyone you care for into your very own special circle of light.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A reminder of a very special moment from the past makes the holidays more memorable for the romantic Aquarian. New friendships hold the promise of a romantic future as well.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Getting into the swim of things for all you party-loving Pisceans is easy enough this holiday season. And, of course, you can expect to impress people wherever you go.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your dedication brings you the success you strive for, and your generosity impels you to reach out and help others on their way up.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Daniel Craig revealed to "The Late Show" host Stephen Colbert that "No Time to Die" would be his last time playing James Bond. In August 2017, after holding out to sign for 007, it was reported he signed for two more Bond films. Craig played 007 five times (Sean Connery and Roger Moore are tied with a record seven times each). Craig was allegedly to get $50 million for his last two Bond films. Who can walk away from that kind of a paycheck? "No Time to Die" -- the 25th Bond film -- opens April 8, 2020.

I met Tom Selleck in 1969 when he was a contract player at 20th Century Fox. He played bit parts, in the background, opening doors and even as a corpse in the film "Coma." When he walked into an interview with the legendary Mae West to be one of her "boys" in "Myra Breckinridge," she took one look at him and said, "Call your agent, the part is yours, name your pay." Tom made five TV pilots that didn't sell, and just three days before his contract ended at Universal Studios, Steven Spielberg revealed he wanted him to play Indiana Jones. When the Universal brass heard that, they pitched him to CBS for a series with no time to make a pilot. CBS greenlighted the show, and Tom Selleck moved to Hawaii, where he sat for months during an actors' strike. The show was "Magnum, P.I.," and the rest is history. Tom has completed 10 seasons of "Blue Bloods" (which he shoots nine days a month back to back so he can still live in Los Angeles). However, when Tom asked CBS for a two-year extension on his "Blue Bloods" contract, they would only give him a one-year guarantee. "Blue Bloods" is a consistent top 10-rated show, so what game are they playing?

"Days of Our Lives" was renewed for season 56 once all the actors' contracts had been canceled and their salaries erased. Now the actors have to renegotiate their salaries, which will be cut to ribbons. Dirty pool.

Robert Redford, currently playing the president of the United States in HBO's "Watchman" series, says, "There are only 11 months before the presidential election, 11 months before we get one real chance to right this ship and change the course of disaster that lies before us. Let's rededicate ourselves to voting for truth, character and integrity in our representatives (no matter which side we're on). Let's go back to being the leaders the free world so desperately needs. Let's return quickly to being simply Americans!" Let's all put his words in our Christmas wishes. Have a very merry Christmas.

KOVELS Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Christmas Toys --- Christmas toys were popular in Victorian times. Hundreds of different family card and board games were manufactured and sold. Today they are collectible as complete games or parts. The box decorated with an attractive Christmas picture of Santa and snow scenes can be propped on a shelf. The board for the game can be framed or hung with removable hooks. The playing cards often picturing children, Christmas characters or decorations can be displayed in groups or slid under the protective glass top on a table. Just the 19-by-10-inch board of "Game of the Visit of Santa Claus" was auctioned for $275 by Soulis Auctions recently. The game was made by McLoughlin Brothers in 1897.

Q: We have a wooden board that is 8 by 9 by 1 1/2-inch thick. In the center is a 7 1/2-inch round elaborately carved design that is 1 inch deep. The design looks like some sort of house with a figure on each side surrounded by falling leaves. The bottom and the border have repeating crescent patterns and the inner rim is fluted. We would like to know what this was used for.

A: Your mold probably was made for lebkuchen, a soft ginger honey cake popular in Germany for centuries at Christmas. Lebkuchen dates back to 14th-century Germany. The earliest was made in monasteries, where, long before sugar, bakers kneaded flour and eggs with honey from local beekeepers. That gave lebkuchen its unique flavor and acted as a preservative. The dough was claylike and pressed into wooden molds that were delicately carved with pictures that told the stories of Christmas and the saints, like St. Nicholas. When trade routes opened, spices were added to the dough, making it more like it is today. Lebkuchen is still made around the holidays, and molds and recipes can be found online. Your mold is probably from the 19th century, and if clean, there is no reason why it couldn't still be used.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was 17th-century English philosopher Thomas Hobbes who made the following sage observation: "Curiosity is the lust of the mind."

* At Christmastime in Greece, people traditionally give small gifts to orphanages and hospitals rather than to each other.

* A traditional Russian Christmas celebration would include spreading hay on a home's floors and tables and clucking loudly. Evidently, this was thought to encourage horse feed to grow and chickens to lay eggs in the coming year.

* The antlers of a bull moose can spread up to 6 feet across -- and they accomplish this astonishing growth in only four months.

* The battle between keepers of livestock and the biting flies that pester their herds is as old as the pastoral life. In recent times, pesticides have been applied with some success, but the expense -- and especially the toxicity -- worry many people. Japanese researchers have recently discovered a simple and inexpensive way to mitigate this concern: Paint zebra stripes on the cows. After several days of observing a control group of black cattle and a test group of the same breed of cattle painted with white stripes, they found that less than half as many biting flies landed on the striped cattle.

* The first postage stamp commemorating Christmas was issued in Austria in 1937.

* We can thank beloved 19th-century English novelist Charles Dickens for the colorful phrase "eat my hat."

* Wildlife documentarians have captured footage of elephant mothers spanking their calves; sometimes she uses her trunk, and sometimes she goes so far as to pull up a shrub and use it as a switch.

Thought for the Day: "I stopped believing in Santa Claus when I was 6. Mother took me to see him in a department store and he asked for my autograph."

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* Movie theater hack: "When buttering up your popcorn, grab a straw and stick it down into the tub. Line up the straw with the butter dispenser, and you can distribute butter into the lower layers of your popcorn. Remove the straw and finish off with butter over the top." -- P.A. in Florida

* "Defog your bathroom mirror with a quick shot of shaving cream. Smear all around and wipe off with a clean, dry face cloth." -- L.A. in Georgia

* Use one leg of a pair of stockings over the hose of a vacuum cleaner to "dust" a bookcase. If you have small knickknacks they won't get sucked up, but dust will. If your stocking gets clogged by a dust bunny, just wipe it off and continue.

* A toilet paper or paper towel roll slit down the side makes a handy clamp for keeping wrapping paper from unraveling.

* Go Green Tip: Most large chains have really gotten on the bandwagon with reusable shopping bags. Here's a tip to help you have one with you at the right moment. Keep several in the trunk. Purchase one or two foldable bags. There are some that fold small enough to fit comfortably in a woman's purse. Keep one of them hanging from your gearshift, and if you attach it to a carabiner clip, you might remember to clip it right to your belt!

* Common substitutions: Recipe call for arrowroot starch? Substitute all-purpose flour.

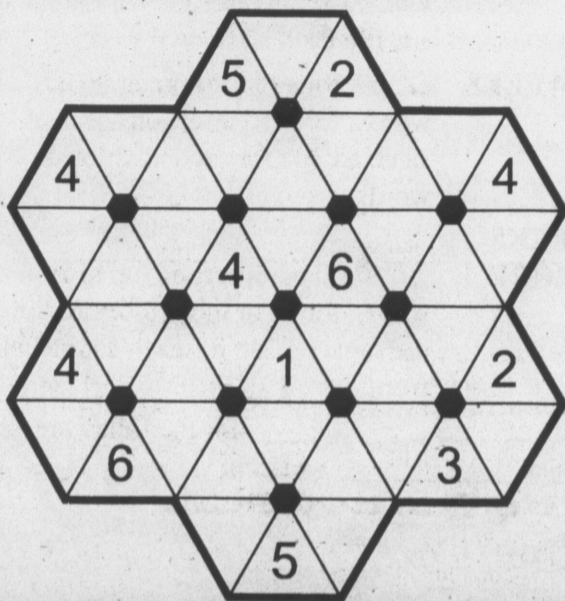

Send your tips to Now Here's a Tip, 628 Virginia Drive, Orlando, FL 32803.

TREE LIGHTING – The Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette Legion Post, recently held its annual tree lighting ceremony at Flags for Veterans Island, School and Pleasant Streets, Quincy. SAL Commander Paul Moody (front row, left), Mayor Thomas Koch (front near tree), Santa Claus and Councillor at-Large Noel DiBona (far right) joined members of the SAL, Morrisette Post, Ladies Auxiliary and their families at the annual event. This year's tree lighting was dedicated to the North Quincy High School Air Force Junior ROTC students for their many years helping to decorate the island with 400 American flags in observance of Memorial Day and Veterans Day.

"I chose Human Services at Quincy College because of the flexibility and their affordable cost. But also because it was a stepping stone for me to transfer credits to a four year college and obtain my Masters degree." - Carla M.

PROGRAM SPOTLIGHT

Human Services Certificate and Associate Degree:
Human Services involve the art and science of working with people and helping others. Within the broad category of human services is the subspecialty of social work. The essential aim of the social work profession is to enhance social functioning of people within social and cultural frameworks. This program prepares graduates to engage in the helping professions at entry levels in their communities.

Be a Good Neighbor!

Keep your sidewalk and steps clear of snow and ice for the mail carrier, police and fire fighters. Don't force school children to walk in the street. Help your elderly neighbors to shovel.

There are 9,329 catch basins in the city. Clearing catch basins near your home or business will allow rain or melting snow to enter the drainage system and not flood the street.

There are 2,549 fire hydrants in the city. Don't pile snow to obstruct a fire hydrant. In the interest of safety, clear and shovel out nearby fire hydrants.

Thank You!
